Introduction

The new students in the Law School in 1995 will be a mixture of school-leavers, graduates from other disciplines, students who have begun but not completed another university course, people who left school some time back and are making a return to a study environment, and law graduates enrolling for a postgraduate degree. For myself and my colleagues on the academic and administrative staff of the School, it is always a pleasure to welcome a new intake of individuals of richly varying backgrounds. We all hope very much that you enjoy your time at the School and that you find it to be both an intellectually stimulating School and a friendly place in which to spend a significant part of your working life.

Our first students enrolled in 1971 and our first graduation ceremony was held in 1976. We are one of the oldest of a comparatively large group of Australian law schools established since the Second World War, though we are far younger than the oldest law school in the country. With about 1480 students and 82 staff (academic and administrative) we are quite a large School.

During its 24 years of life, the School has managed to acquire an excellent reputation, based in very large measure on the quality of the legal education that our students have received. We have always borne in mind that legal education is not just training for a profession, but should be undertaken with the same spirit of inquiry and the same determination to assess and criticise received wisdom as any other branch of university study.

In our curriculum planning, we consider it significant that law graduates have a much wider range of career options open to them than just the traditional forms of private practice. Along with other law schools, we have been fortunate in being able to secure and maintain acceptance of the principle that lawyers should be educated to degree standard in at least one other discipline as well as law. We can accordingly ensure that law is taught in our School from broader theoretical perspectives than those of law’s own internal logic. We are also committed to the principle that there should be a relatively small compulsory core of subjects in the LLB curriculum, and a wide choice of electives.

Another important feature of the Law School is its insistence on active learning. Lectures to huge crowds of students in large lecture halls are virtually unknown. Although resource constraints are compelling us to teach some subjects in classes of 60 or thereabouts, we are keeping this mode of instruction to a minimum, and the bulk of our teaching is done in groups no larger than 40, and sometimes in groups as small as 20. We thus call on students to prepare before classes and participate actively during classes. We are convinced that this is not only the right educational approach for intending lawyers, whose future careers will regularly make demands on their capacity to explain and argue about the law in an articulate way, but also the way to make university education enjoyable for both students and teachers. Even our approach to grading students, which adopts the principle of continuous assessment, not ‘sudden death’ examinations, makes due allowance for oral skills, in that students are in some subjects given the opportunity to be assessed on their capacity to prepare and present an oral legal argument in a hypothetical court case (called a ‘moot’).

Practical skills receive due emphasis in our curriculum. Computer retrieval of legal information is taught in a number of compulsory and elective subjects, elective subjects provide practical training in advocacy skills, and we are virtually the only law school in NSW to offer a clinical subject in which students, under supervision, handle real cases for the clients of a local legal centre. Our objective is to produce graduates who will be sufficiently well prepared to function as legal professionals into the first half of the 21st century. The Faculty’s Continuing Legal Education courses and our Coursework Masters program continue the process at postgraduate level.
Above all, the School firmly believes that 'students matter'. In small or medium-sized class groups we can get to know each other as individuals, with first names being used by students in addressing teachers as well as the other way round. We have special tutors appointed to assist indigenous students and students whose first language is not English. Student representatives are actively involved in decision making by the School and its committees. With support from the School and from a number of Sydney law firms, the student Law Society organises a range of activities such as a program of distinguished guest speakers, moot competitions, the UNSW Law Journal and the annual despatch of delegations of students to a week-long convention of Australasian law students. The School also helps students to obtain summer placements before graduation and employment after graduation. Law Library staff are always willing to assist students to locate materials and they take the lead in conducting our legal research programs.

The Law School is not only a teaching institution. It has a fine reputation for legal research, particularly research aimed to assist the law and legal institutions in meeting community needs and expectations. This involves a critical assessment of the adequacy of existing rules, institutions and processes. Many members of the academic staff have contributed notably to law reform in a variety of ways. Many students have also contributed to such work.

The Law School is a large and busy place with many different activities going on. But we are committed to maintaining the personal touch, above all through the willingness of staff to deal with any questions or difficulties (academic, personal or other) that you may face.

We wish you success and enjoyment in your time here, and we look forward to meeting you and working with you.

Michael Chesterman
Dean
The academic year is divided into two sessions, each containing 14 weeks for teaching. Between the two sessions there is a break of approximately six weeks, which includes a one-week study period, two weeks for examinations, and three weeks’ recess. There is also a short recess of one week within each session.

Session 1 commences on the Monday nearest 1 March.

All Faculties (other than AGSM, Medicine and University College)

This Handbook is divided into two main sections comprising undergraduate study and postgraduate study. Initially, course outlines are presented in each section, providing a guide to the degrees within organizational units. Read the opening sections of the handbook first, and then read the information contained under Course Outlines (Undergraduate or Postgraduate as appropriate). Detailed information on each subject can then be found under Subject Descriptions which provides full details of subject content, contacts and session/prerequisite details. Rules for progression through offered courses follow the subject description entries.

As changes may be made to information provided in this Handbook, students should frequently consult the noticeboards of the schools and the official noticeboards of the University.

General Faculty Information and Assistance

Enquiries about enrolment, degree requirements, progression within courses, career advice or any other general Faculty matters should be made in the first instance to the staff in the Administration Office on Level 10. If the Office staff are unable to assist, you will be referred to another member of staff who will be able to respond to your enquiry. Faculty timetables, examination information, requests for special consideration and official University forms are all available from the Administration Office.

Faculty of Law Enrolment Procedures

All students re-enrolling in 1995 should obtain a copy of the free leaflet Re-Enrolling 1995 which is available from the Administration Office and from the Admissions Section. This leaflet provides detailed information on enrolment procedures and fees, enrolment timetables by Faculty and course, enrolment as a miscellaneous student, and late enrolment. In order to assist the staff to get to know individual students, all new students are required to present a passport sized photograph when enrolling.

Pre-enrolment

With the exception of new students, all students must pre-enrol with the Faculty in November of each year.

Guidelines for Maximum Workload

The sequence of study for each course is set out in the Faculty Handbook. Any student wishing to vary their course program (law or non-law) by enrolling in extra subjects, in a reduced program or in subjects which do not conform to the normal sequence, must seek approval from the Administrative Officer. Permission is given only in exceptional circumstances and on the basis of a written application submitted in advance of the relevant session or sessions outlining all the circumstances.

Full-time Status

Students are reminded that a full-time course program is intended for students who devote the principal part of their available time to their course. Any additional commitment, in the form of paid work, training for sport at a significant level of achievement or voluntary work in community organizations, is bound to have an effect on a student’s work. Past experience shows that commitment beyond 10-15 hours per week almost invariably has an adverse effect on student performance and in some cases has led directly to failure. Students are strongly advised that, if outside commitment of this order is likely to be maintained consistently over a session, the commitment should be discussed in advance with the Administrative Officer. It should be noted, however, that it is the individual teachers who determine whether outside commitments should constitute grounds for consideration in meeting the requirements of particular subjects.

Part-time Status

Students undertaking the part-time course for Bachelor of Laws are expected to attend classes on two afternoons per week during the academic year, usually between 2pm and 6pm on Tuesday and Friday.

Assessment of Student Progress

Formal examinations are not the only method the Law School will use to assess students. Other methods of assessment include research projects, class participation, essays and moots (mock trials).
General Education Requirement

The University requires that all undergraduate students undertake a structured program in General Education as an integral part of studies for their degree.

Among its objectives, the General Education program provides the opportunity for students to address some of the key questions they will face as individuals, citizens and professionals.

There are differing requirements for students commencing before, in, and after 1988. Students must complete a program of general education in accordance with the requirements in effect when they commenced their degree program. Students should consult the appropriate course authority or the Centre for Liberal and General Studies in Morven Brown Building, Room LG50.

The program currently requires students to undertake studies in three categories. It is however under review, and the requirements may change during or after 1995. The key questions addressed by the Program in its present form are:

Category A. External Context: an introduction in nonspecialist terms to an understanding of the environments in which humans function.

Course requirement: 56 hours

1. Australia and the Development of the World Economy. How do we, can we, generate wealth?
2. Human Inequality. How can we, ought we, distribute wealth, status and power?
3. Science and Civilization. What steps should we take, and what policies should we adopt, in science and technology?
4. Ecosystems, Technology and Human Habitation. What effects do our wealth generating and techno-scientific activities have on the environment?
5. Mass Media and Communication. What are the effects of the new mass media of communication?
6. Australian Society and Culture. What are the key social and cultural influences on Australia today?

The General Education requirement to study subjects in Category A of the General Education Program does not apply to Law students enrolled in a course leading to the award of two degrees in different disciplines.

Category B. The Internal Context of Assumptions and Values: an introduction to, and a critical reflection upon, the cultural bases of knowledge, belief, language, identity and purpose.

Course requirement: 56 hours

1. The Self and Society. How do we define ourselves in relation to the larger human community?
2. Changing Conceptions of Human Nature and Well-Being. How do our conceptions of human nature and well being influence both individual and social behaviour?
3. The Pursuit of Human Rationality. What are the prevailing conceptions of and challenges to human rationality?
4. The Use of Language, Images and Symbols. How do language, images and symbols function as means and media of communication?
5. The Computer: Its Impact, Significance and Uses. What is the impact of the computer on human society and culture?

6. Beliefs, Values and the Search for Meaning. Which systems of belief and configurations of values are most conducive to the survival and enhancement of the human species and the planet earth?

The Category B requirement is satisfied by Law students through completion of the subjects LAWS8820 Law and Social Theory or LAWS8320 Legal Theory.

Category C. An introduction to the design and responsible management of the human and planetary future: looks at the development, design and responsible management of the systems over which human beings exercise some influence and control. This category is required only of students in four-year professional and honours programs.

The central question to be addressed by students in a systematic and formal way is:

For what purpose or purposes will I use my intellectual skills, my expertise, or my technological prowess?

Will these abilities be used, for example:

- in a creative and innovative way?
- to widen the circle of human participation in the benefits they bring?
- to break down the barriers of exclusion and discrimination?
- to enhance the prospects for survival of the human species?
- to enhance the capacity of the planet earth to sustain life?

In the Law Faculty students satisfy the Category C General Education requirement by completing the subject LAWS6210 Law, Lawyers and Society.

Students proceeding to their non-law degree only must satisfy General Education requirements in order to graduate. Advice should be sought from the School or Faculty which awards the non-law degree.

Professional Associates

In addition to full-time teaching staff in the Faculty of Law, each year there is a small number of distinguished members of the legal profession in New South Wales who work in close association with full-time teachers. They participate in all aspects of the presentation of courses covered by their professional specialization.

---

Prizes

A number of prizes are awarded annually. A full list appears in the last section of this Handbook.
Advanced Standing

The policy of the Law Faculty is to grant credit for subjects which have been successfully completed in another Law Faculty where those subjects, in the opinion of the Faculty, are equivalent in content and depth to comparable subjects at the UNSW. Applicants who have completed a full law degree in another country are normally granted credit equivalent to one third of the UNSW degree. All matters regarding credit are at the discretion of the Faculty.

Cross Institutional Studies and Exchange Programs

Students enrolled at UNSW may be permitted to undertake some studies at overseas or interstate institutions ("Cross-Institutional Studies") provided that they are equivalent in content and depth to comparable subjects at UNSW.

Subjects which have been successfully completed at another law school (either in Australia or overseas) may be credited to the student's degree. Students must note that the Faculty generally requires that at least 50% of law studies be completed at UNSW.

The Faculty participates in several overseas exchange programs, and encourages students to take advantage of these. Information regarding these programs can be obtained from the administrative staff or the Associate Dean.

Students should discuss their plans for cross-institutional studies with the Associate Dean or the Administrative Officer in order to determine both their eligibility to undertake such studies and the "creditability" of the subjects under consideration.

Financial Assistance to Students

Full-time students within the Faculty of Law in need of temporary financial assistance at any time during their studies should be aware of the existence of certain grants and loans sponsored by some Sydney law firms. Students who feel they may need assistance of this type are invited to discuss their requirements on a strictly confidential basis with the Dean.

Other financial assistance

In addition to AUSTUDY financed by the Australian Government other forms of assistance available include short term cash loans and financial assistance to Aboriginal students. Full details appear in the University Calendar. Enquiries should be directed to the office of Student Services, Room G19, the Chancellery.

Commitment to Equal Opportunity in Education

It is government and University policy not to discriminate against students or prospective students on the grounds of sex, marital status, pregnancy, race, national or ethnic origin, colour, homosexuality, disability or religion. The University has committed itself to course design, curriculum content, classroom environment, assessment procedures and other aspects of campus life which will provide equality of educational opportunity to all students.

The University's policy of equal opportunity in education includes seeking wherever possible to ensure maximum participation of students with disabilities.

The University offers a range of assistance: examination support; specialized equipment; educational support; parking provisions; library assistance.

A Resource Guide for students and staff with disabilities and a map showing wheelchair access is available from the Adviser to Students with Disabilities, the EEO Unit, the Library and the Students Union.

It is advisable to make contact with the Adviser to Students with Disabilities prior to, or immediately following enrolment, to discuss your support needs. The Adviser can be contacted on 385 5418 or at Student Services, Quadrangle Building.

The Law Faculty has endorsed the University's policy statement on Equal Opportunity in Education. The University operates a special admission scheme to encourage enrolment from members of disadvantaged groups. Questions relating to discrimination are included in the course and teaching performance questionnaires completed by students at the end of most subjects. The Faculty Curriculum and Teaching Committee monitors all course outlines detailing objectives and assessment strategy on a range of criteria including compliance with EOE policy. The Faculty is considering other ways in which the University policy might be developed and supported.

Equal Opportunity in Education Policy Statement

Under the Federal Racial Discrimination Act (1975), Sex Discrimination Act (1984), Disability Discrimination Act (1992) and the New South Wales Anti-Discrimination Act (1977), the University is required not to discriminate against students or prospective students on the grounds of sex, marital status, pregnancy, race, nationality, national or ethnic origin, colour, homosexuality or disability. Under the University of New South Wales Act (1989), the University is required not to discriminate against students or prospective students on the grounds of sex, marital status, pregnancy, race, nationality, national or ethnic origin, colour, homosexuality or disability. Under the University of New South Wales Act (1989), the University declares that it will not discriminate on the grounds of religious or political affiliations, views or beliefs.

University Commitment to Equal Opportunity in Education

As well as recognizing its statutory obligations as listed, the University will eliminate discrimination on any other grounds which it deems to constitute disadvantage. The University is committed to providing a place to study free from harassment and discrimination, and one in which every student is encouraged to work towards her/his maximum potential. The University further commits itself to course design, curriculum content, classroom environment, assessment procedures and other aspects of campus life which will provide equality of educational opportunity to all students.

Special Admissions Schemes
The University will encourage the enrolment of students who belong to disadvantaged groups through programs such as the University Preparation Program and the ACCESS Scheme. Where members of disadvantaged groups are particularly under-represented in certain disciplines, the responsible faculties will actively encourage their enrolment.

Support of Disadvantaged Students
The University will provide support to assist the successful completion of studies by disadvantaged group members through such means as the Aboriginal Education Program, the Supportive English Program and the Learning Centre. It will work towards the provision of other resources, such as access for students with impaired mobility, assistance to students with other disabilities, the provision of a parents' room on the upper campus, and increased assistance with English language and communication.

Course Content, Curriculum Design, Teaching and Assessment, and Printed Material
Schools and faculties will monitor course content (including titles), teaching methods, assessment procedures, written material (including study guides and handbook and Calendar entries) and audiovisual material to ensure that they are not discriminatory or offensive and that they encourage and facilitate full participation in education by disadvantaged people.

Equal Opportunity Adviser Scheme
The University will continue its Equal Opportunity Adviser Scheme for students who feel that they have been harassed or who consider they have been disadvantaged in their education by practices and procedures within the University.

Harassment Policy
The University is committed to ensuring freedom from harassment for all people working or studying within the institution. It will continue to take action, including disciplinary action, to ensure that freedom from harassment is achieved.

Student Clubs and Societies
Students have the opportunity of joining a wide range of clubs and societies. There are numerous religious, social and cultural clubs affiliated with the Students' Union and also many sporting clubs which are affiliated with the Sports Association.

Clubs and societies seeking to use the name of the University in their title, or seeking University recognition, must submit their constitution either to the Students' Union or the Sports Association if they wish to be affiliated with either of these bodies, or to the Registrar for approval by the University Council.

The University of New South Wales Law Society
The UNSW Law Society was formed early in 1971 and all law students are automatically members. The Executive of the UNSW Law Society organizes academic, social and sporting activities and represents the law students in student affairs. The Executive takes office at the end of the second session exam period following an election in Week 12 of the second session.

Law students are welcome to contact the Law Society direct or through the pigeon holes and noticeboard which are located near the Faculty Office.

The Law Society Executive in 1995 is:

Student Members of Faculty

Each year in October up to six students are elected to membership of Faculty for the following year. All students enrolled in the Faculty are eligible to stand for election and to vote.

Student Members attend Faculty meetings and sit on various Faculty and School Committees.

Student Members of Faculty in 1995 are:

Indrajeet Aich
Jason Elias
Andrew Huang
Douglas Huey
Tamir Maltz
Anthony Phillips
Kate Roden
Jeremy Waine
Law Library

The Law Library is situated on the eighth and ninth levels of the Library Tower and contains approximately 150,000 volumes. Jackie Patrick is the Law Librarian.

During Orientation Week and the first week of session, guided tours of the Law Library are conducted. Since the various courses provided in the Law School require extensive use of the Library and its materials, all students are urged to attend one of these tours. Legal Research and Writing classes assume that students have attended the orientation tour.

The librarians and the other staff members are always ready to assist readers to make the best use of the Library's collection. Further useful information may be found in the Library Guide, which is available from the Library.

The Law Faculty acknowledges generous sponsorship of the Law Library by the law firm Freehill, Hollingdale & Page.

Aboriginal Law Centre

Established within the Faculty of Law in 1986 with Professor Garth Nettheim as Chair. The Centre aims to develop and coordinate research, teaching and dissemination of information in the multi-disciplinary area of the relationship between Aboriginal peoples and the law.

Some of the objectives of the Centre are:

- to provide a focus for, and to foster research concerning Aboriginal peoples and the law;
- to achieve publication of the results of research undertaken by individuals working with the Centre or independently of the Centre;
- to disseminate information concerning Aboriginal peoples and the law to interested individuals and bodies throughout Australia and abroad;
- to organize and participate in conferences and seminars from time to time;
- to encourage the development of curricula and teaching materials in the field of Aboriginal peoples and the law for use in the University of New South Wales and elsewhere.

Kingsford Legal Centre

Kingsford Legal Centre is a law clinic attached to the Faculty of Law. The Centre provides a clinical teaching environment for law students and social work students. The students assist the Centre lawyers acting for members of the local community unable to afford legal assistance.

Law students also have the opportunity to work with social work students on placement at the Centre. This interdisciplinary approach is a further means of enabling law students to work in and understand legal processes.

The Centre began operations in July, 1981. It has 4 lawyers, one of whom (the Director) has the status of a lecturer in the Law Faculty. The Centre is jointly funded by the Faculty of Law and the Legal Aid Commission of NSW, with assistance from Randwick City Council. In addition, the law firm Freehill, Hollingdale & Page maintains the permanent secondment of a solicitor's position to the Centre.

The subjects LAWS7200 Clinical Legal Experience (Intensive) and LAWS7210 Clinical Legal Experience, which require students to work at the Centre, are electives for later year students; students can take a subject in either session. LAWS7210 is also available over summer. Students take instructions from clients, prepare necessary documents, undertake legal research and assist the lawyer responsible for the matter in the preparation of any court hearings. In this way students can consolidate their study of the law by practical application. Small group classes and constant consultation with the lawyers provide an opportunity for students to analyse both their roles as lawyers and the role of law in society.

In its community legal clinic function the Centre has been prominent in several areas, particularly anti-discrimination and domestic violence. Centre lawyers, accompanied by students, assist people in police custody at Waverley Local Court one day each week. Students are also involved in outreach legal advice and education services to the local community. In 1994 the Centre became the host organisation for the newly formed Disability Discrimination Legal Centre.

Human Rights Centre

The Centre was established in August 1986. The objectives of the Centre are: to undertake, encourage and facilitate research (including postgraduate research) in the field of human rights; to coordinate and develop subjects in the field of human rights including the establishment of cross-faculty teaching linkages; to conduct specialized human rights courses of a continuing education nature for various professional groups; to promote and stimulate informed thinking about human rights and their implications for law and society through excellence in analysis and research; to organise occasional conferences for both specialist and non-specialist groups and assist in similar activity by others; to assist, in association with other relevant bodies, in the dissemination of information about human rights to the broader community; and to collaborate with a variety of bodies and individuals working in the human rights area at the national, regional and international levels.

For further information contact the Director, A/Prof George Zdenkowski, (Tel: 395 2262).
Australian Taxation Studies Program (ATAX)

The Centre has been founded within the Faculty of Law. For further information contact the ATAX office (Tel: 385 9333).

Continuing Legal Education Unit

The Continuing Legal Education Unit (CLE) provides high quality professional education for lawyers and other professionals. CLE has been established for over ten years and is an important link between the Faculty of Law, the legal profession in Australia and the wider national and international community.

The objectives of the CLE program are:
- to provide courses which meet the legally-related educational needs of professional groups, especially but not limited to, lawyers;
- to develop the image of the Faculty as being in the forefront of legal development in key areas and active in legal criticism by running high quality educational programs in these areas; and
- to derive income from the conduct of programs for the Faculty's purposes.

The range of programs offered includes:
- evening or day time seminars designed to update the knowledge of legal practitioners and other professionals;
- conferences which provide a forum for discussion of and training in new or developing areas of law and legal practice;
- legal skills and accreditation courses for lawyers and non-lawyers in areas of practice and procedure such as, advocacy, alternative dispute resolution and migration procedure;
- short courses in substantive law for particular professional groups, including professionals from foreign jurisdictions.

For further information on particular CLE activities please contact the Director, Cheryl White (Tel: 385 2267 or Fax: 313 7637).

Communications Law Centre

The Centre, which is affiliated with the University of New South Wales, was established in 1987. The diversity of issues which arise in communications means that the Centre deals with a wide range of areas of law, including broadcasting and telecommunications law, copyright, defamation, contempt, trade practices and aspects of administrative, commercial and company law.

The Centre plays an active advocacy role, providing legal advice and litigating matters related to communications law where they have significant public interest or 'test case' potential. It undertakes research in areas related to media law and regularly makes submissions to government and other inquiries on communications matters. Located on campus at UNSW, the Centre cooperates with the Law School in research and teaching, as well as organising seminars and conferences, collecting and disseminating specialist legal information, and publishing occasional papers and a monthly journal, Communications Update. Volunteer assistance from students and others is welcomed in appropriate projects.

The Centre is the first of its kind in Australia and is funded by the Law Foundation of New South Wales, with assistance from Telstra Corporation, the Australian Film Commission and the Hartey Trust. The Centre has a branch office in Melbourne, coordinated by Paul Chadwick. For more information contact Director, Helen Mills or Administrator, Amanda Butt (Tel: 663 0551).

National Children's and Youth Law Centre

The National Children’s and Youth Law Centre is a newly established law centre which aims to promote the rights and interests of children and young people throughout Australia. The Centre is a joint project of the University of New South Wales, the University of Sydney, the Australia Youth Foundation and the Public Interest Advocacy Centre. The Centre has recently moved from the Sydney University Law School building to premises provided by the University of New South Wales at 32 Botany Street, Randwick.

The Centre publishes a quarterly bulletin, Rights Now!, which contains news and comments on a variety of children's rights issues. It also puts out discussion papers on a number of youth issues and a Student's Rights Kit alerting government school students to their rights in school. The Centre can be contacted by telephone (02) 398 7488, fax (02) 398 7416 or by mail via the UNSW, Sydney NSW 2052.
The Faculty of Law enrolled its first students in 1971. The Faculty offers two undergraduate degrees: Bachelor of Laws (LLB) and Bachelor of Jurisprudence (BJuris). The LLB degree is designed as a professional degree which will satisfy the academic requirements for admission to practice. It is offered as part of nine undergraduate combined courses involving full-time study, and leading to the award of two degrees. The LLB degree is offered to students who already possess a first degree as a three year full-time course. It is also offered as a part-time course which requires six years’ study. The BJuris degree is not designed to provide a professional qualification and is offered as a separate degree, or as part of the combined Jurisprudence/Law course.

The Law School is situated on the main university campus and seeks to take full advantage of the opportunities this provides for interdisciplinary study. Law is a system of authority and regulation in society, and must respond to social needs and changes. The rapidly changing and highly sophisticated society of the next half century will call for lawyers who are not merely competent but who are roundly educated men and women, ready to adapt to continuing change, sensitive to social issues, and equipped to deal with the law after finding it to interpret it, analyse it, criticize it, see the possibilities of distinction and development, relate it to real problems and use it efficiently and creatively. This requires the active participation of students in sufficiently small groups to allow interaction between the minds of student and teacher, and student and student. A class is normally scheduled over a continuous period of two hours.

Subjects taught in the Law Faculty extend over one or two sessions each of 14 weeks; in either case there is usually some form of examination at the end of a session. However, examinations are only one method of assessing students, as other work undertaken during the year is also taken into account.

On the completion of each law subject a student is allotted a specified number of credit points. To obtain the degree each student must complete the designated number of credit points (as detailed below), and also satisfy all other course requirements.

The total number of credit points (Law subjects) required for Commerce/Law, Economics/Law, Science/Law, Engineering/Law, Arts/Law, Social Science/Law or Social Work/Law courses is 81; for the Jurisprudence/Law course (where there are fewer non-law subjects) it is 93; the LLB course for graduates or the part time LLB course is 75. In each case compulsory subjects total 45 credit points, leaving the balance to be made up from elective subjects.

Students who have attended and satisfactorily completed subjects in a Law School at another recognized university may, on application, receive standing for those subjects provided their application falls within the University and Faculty rules on advanced standing. Students already enrolled in the Faculty of Law who wish to interpolate a period of study overseas, and who wish to seek advanced standing for law subjects studied, are required to seek the approval of the Administrative Officer or the Associate Dean before arrangements for entry to the overseas Law School are finalized.

The relevant Rules are set out separately, compulsory and elective subjects are listed in Rule 5, appearing later under Rules for Award of Degrees.

Bachelor of Laws

The Bachelor of Laws degree (whether taken as part of a combined course or separately) is designed to give students a sound knowledge of a number of areas of law that are fundamental to legal work, a broad concept of the legal system as a whole, the experience of working in depth or specializing in a significant number of areas of choice, and an opportunity to develop certain specific legal skills.

These objectives are reflected in the various elements of the course but the real development of the student's potential as a lawyer depends as much on the learning situation as on what is learnt. The aim is to keep formal lecturing to a minimum, with students learning from the beginning to find the law for themselves. The main purpose of class contact is to develop the students' capacity to deal
Bachelor of Jurisprudence

The Bachelor of Jurisprudence (BJuris), unlike the LLB degree, is not designed to provide a qualification for the professional practice of law. It provides a basic knowledge of law, an opportunity to study selected legal subjects of special interest, and significant study in other faculties of subjects relevant to an understanding of the working of the law. Various combinations of Law subjects and non-Law subjects are possible and a course may be moulded to meet various vocational ends, eg for industrial officers or advocates, public servants, business executives, law librarians.

Teaching methods in law subjects are the same as in the LLB degree course.

The BJuris degree is available as a pass degree in the Jurisprudence/Law course, which combines the most extensive legal education with the study of important related subjects in other faculties. It is also available as a separate course. Requirements for the award of the Bachelor of Jurisprudence degree are listed in Rule 10 of the Rules for the Award of Degrees.

Qualification as a Legal Practitioner

Admission as a legal practitioner in New South Wales is controlled by the Supreme Court of New South Wales and is regulated by Rules of Court. Certificates to practise as a barrister or solicitor are granted by the NSW Bar Association and the Law Society of NSW respectively. Certain information is set out hereunder as background information, but each student desiring to qualify as a legal practitioner should make personal inquiries to the Secretary of the Legal Practitioners Admission Board, Supreme Court, Queens Square, Sydney telephone 392 0300. The Secretary is in a position to advise authoritatively as to the requirements relative to a particular case, and supply the relevant forms and information.

Under new rules coming into operation students wishing to become legal practitioners must meet certain academic requirements, attend a full-time practical skills course lasting 15 weeks at the College of Law and obtain practical experience. The academic requirements will be satisfied by the possession of the LLB degree of the University. After successful completion of the College of Law course and a period of 24 weeks practical experience, students will be admitted as legal practitioners. To practise as a barrister or solicitor they must also have the appropriate practising certificate, to which conditions will be attached.

College of Law

The College of Law was established by the Law Society of New South Wales in 1974 at St Leonards. The College is not an alternative to University education in law, ie it does not offer courses satisfying the academic requirements for admission to practise as a legal practitioner.

The course that it offers is related to actual practice as far as possible and covers basic areas of work encountered in legal practice. Students are grouped into 'firms' and work within up-to-date well-equipped 'offices'. They are provided with a variety of practical experiences in a series of legal situations.

Enquiries regarding the College of Law should be addressed to The Director, The College of Law, PO Box 2, St Leonards, NSW 2065. Courses at the College are currently under review.

ANU Legal Workshop

Each year, a course of professional training for the practice of law is conducted at the Australian National University. The course is a six-month full-time course, conducted by the Legal Workshop of the Faculty of Law. The Workshop is contemplating charging fees for attendance. Under reciprocal arrangements, graduates of the Legal Workshop will be entitled to be admitted to practise in New South Wales, but they will at first be given only restricted practising certificates in a manner analogous to students completing the course at the College of Law.

Graduates of the University of New South Wales are eligible to apply for admission to courses run by the Workshop.
Course Outlines

Courses Available

The following courses are available:

1. A three-year full-time course leading to the award of the degree of Bachelor of Laws; this course is available only to graduates or graduands.

2. A six-year part-time course leading to the award of the degree of Bachelor of Laws; this course is only available to graduates and people over 21 who have achieved professional maturity of roughly equivalent nature.

3. A three-year full-time course leading to the award of the degree of Bachelor of Jurisprudence.

4. A five-year combined course leading to the award of the degrees of Bachelor of Jurisprudence and Bachelor of Laws.

5. A five-year combined course leading to the award of the degrees of Bachelor of Commerce and Bachelor of Laws.

6. A five-year combined course leading to the award of the degrees of Bachelor of Economics and Bachelor of Laws.

7. A five-year combined course leading to the award of the degrees of Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Laws.

8. A five-year combined course leading to the award of the degrees of Bachelor of Arts (Asian Studies) and Bachelor of Laws.

9. A five-year combined course leading to the award of the degrees of Bachelor of Social Science and Bachelor of Laws.

10. A five-year combined course leading to the award of the degrees of Bachelor of Science and Bachelor of Laws.

11. A six-year combined course leading to the award of the degrees of Bachelor of Engineering and Bachelor of Laws.

12. A six-year combined course leading to the award of the degrees of Bachelor of Social Work and Bachelor of Laws.

Students in courses in the Law Faculty who discover they have made a wrong choice of course within the Faculty should consult the Administrative Officer as soon as possible. It is sometimes possible to effect changes without seriously affecting progress in the new course; the earlier the change can be made the easier the transition.

During 1993 the Faculty made changes to Contracts and introduced a new compulsory subject - Public Law. These changes do not affect students who entered the Law School prior to 1994.

Bachelor of Laws Degree Course (Full-time) For Graduates or Graduands

Bachelor of Laws

LLB

This course enables students who have already completed another degree to obtain the Bachelor of Laws degree (the nature of which has been described earlier in this handbook). The main features of the course are as follows:

1. The course is of three years' full-time study leading to the award of the Bachelor of Laws degree.

2. The course is available to graduates or graduands of another faculty of this or another approved university.

3. There are no subject or faculty prerequisites for entry to the course but students must study Law subjects in an approved sequence.

The following is an approved sequence of subjects for the three year Bachelor of Laws degree course for graduates; other sequences may be approved in particular cases.

Bachelor of Laws Degree Course (Part-time)

LLB

The part-time course is only available to graduates and people over 21 who have achieved professional maturity of roughly equivalent nature. The course is not available to people who proceed direct from the Higher School Certificate. The course is a six year part-time course leading to the award of the degree of Bachelor of Laws (LLB) and satisfies academic requirements for admission to practice. It involves attendance at the Kensington campus on two afternoons a week from 2 pm during the academic year.

The subjects of the LLB degree course are set out in Rule 5 appearing later under Rules for Award of Degrees. However, it will not be possible to provide the full range of electives at times convenient to part-time students.

Students must complete law subjects (including compulsory subjects) carrying 75 credit points. An approved sequence of subjects for the part-time course is set out below.

Bachelor of Jurisprudence Degree Course

BJuris

The Bachelor of Jurisprudence (BJuris) degree course, unlike the LLB degree course, is not designed to provide a qualification for the professional practice of law. It provides a basic knowledge of law, an opportunity to study selected legal subjects of special interest, and significant study in other faculties of subjects relevant to an understanding of the working of the law. Various combinations of Law subjects and non-Law subjects are possible and a course may be moulded to meet various vocational ends, e.g. for industrial officers or advocates, public servants, business executives, law librarians.

Non-Law subjects make up approximately one third of the course and are selected with regard to their relevance to legal studies.

The main features of the course are as follows:

1. The course is a three year full-time course leading to the award of the degree of Bachelor of Jurisprudence (BJuris).
2. The Law subjects must include LAWS1120 Legal System Torts, LAWS7410 Legal Research and Writing 1, LAWS2140 Public Law, LAWS1610 Criminal Law, LAWS2160 Administrative Law, LAWS1420 Contracts, LAWS7420 Legal Research and Writing 2, LAWS7430 Research Component, and LAWS8320 Legal Theory or LAWS8820 Law and Social Theory.
3. Students are required to obtain the approval of the Faculty of Law for their proposed program of non-Law subjects; the program should provide an integrated pattern of legal and non-legal studies.
4. The non-Law subjects shall include, unless otherwise approved, a major sequence of three years study.
5. Students must satisfy any subject prerequisites (but not general faculty prerequisites) for subjects studied in other faculties. There are no general faculty prerequisites to courses offered by the Faculty of Law but students must study Law subjects in a sequence approved by the Faculty of Law.

The following is an approved sequence of subjects for the three year Bachelor of Jurisprudence degree, other sequences may be approved in particular cases.

Combined Jurisprudence/Law Course

4780
Bachelor of Jurisprudence/Bachelor of Laws
BJuris LLB

This course offers the most extensive legal education. Non-Law subjects make up approximately one sixth of the combined course and are selected with regard to their relevance to legal studies.

The main features of the combined Jurisprudence/Law course are as follows:

1. The course is a five year full-time combined course leading to the award of the two degrees of Bachelor of Jurisprudence and Bachelor of Laws (BJuris LLB).
2. The first three years of the course include non-Law subjects together with Law. Law subjects comprise 45 credit points of compulsory subjects and 48 credit points of elective subjects.
3. Students are required to obtain the approval of the Faculty of Law for their proposed program of non-Law subjects, with an indication of Law electives they intend to study.

Non Law requirements

(1) The non-Law subjects contribute to the development of the student’s capacity as a lawyer and to a more complete understanding of the law. Subjects which have been approved for this purpose are Economics, Economic History, Political Science, Sociology, Philosophy, History, Accountancy, Psychology and Industrial Relations. A student may apply for special approval for another subject.

(2) One sequence of subjects is studied through to third-year level and another for one year.

4. Students must satisfy any subject prerequisites (but not general faculty prerequisites) for subjects studied in other faculties. There are no general faculty prerequisites to courses offered by the Faculty of Law but students must study Law subjects in a sequence approved by the Faculty of Law.

5. The whole of the final two years of the course, as well as part of the first three years, consists of Law subjects.

6. The degree of Bachelor of Jurisprudence may be awarded after successful completion of all subjects and units prescribed for the first three years of the course.

A typical structure of a Jurisprudence/Law course is set out below. Subject A represents a major sequence of three years’ study in one of the subjects listed in para 3.1 above. Subject B represents a subject studied at first-year level only from these subjects. Students are strongly advised to consult the Arts and Commerce Faculty Handbooks before completing enrolment or re-enrolment details.

Combined Commerce/Law and Economics/Law Courses

These courses provide an opportunity to obtain two degrees of professional importance to business, administration and commercial law practice. The Law component is the same as for the combined Arts/Law course, although the overall course is probably somewhat heavier, particularly in Year 3.

In Commerce the student may choose one of the five specializations Accounting, Finance, Information Systems, Industrial Relations or Marketing.

The main features of the combined Commerce/Law and Economics/Law courses are as follows:

1. The courses are of five years full-time study leading to the award of the two degrees of Bachelor of Commerce (Accounting, Finance, Information Systems, Industrial Relations or Marketing) and Bachelor of Laws or Bachelor of Economics and Bachelor of Laws (BCom LLB or BEc LLB).
2. The student must elect to take one of the six courses at the beginning of Year 1. Changes from one Commerce course or the Economics course to another before the beginning of Year 2 may be arranged; enquiries should be made in the first instance to the Administrative Officer, Faculty of Law.

3. Students must satisfy the normal prerequisites for entry to the Commerce and Economics Faculty and to individual subjects in that faculty. There are no general faculty prerequisites to courses offered by the Faculty of Law but students must study Law subjects in a sequence approved by the Faculty of Law.

4. The requirements relating to Honours in the BCom and BEc degree courses are noted at the end of Year 3 of the program for each specialization. Students ordinarily will interpolate an honours year between Years 3 and 4 of the combined course.

5. Students enrolling from 1995 will be able to graduate from the Bachelor of Commerce or Bachelor of Economics after the completion of the first three years of the prescribed combined Law course. Students enrolled prior to 1995 may, under certain circumstances be awarded the Bachelor of Commerce or Bachelor of Economics before the completion of the full five year program, but in any event, not before the successful completion of the first three years of the combined course. Full details of these conditions may be obtained from the Faculty of Commerce and Economics Students Centre or the Commerce and Economics Handbooks prior to 1995. Any student who fails to complete the full combined course may apply for advanced standing in the Faculty of Commerce and Economics.

Notwithstanding the above regulations, students undertaking the combined Bachelor of Commerce or Bachelor of Economics at Honours Level/Bachelor of Laws course may be awarded the degree of Bachelor of Commerce or Bachelor of Economics at Honours level once they have completed the Honours year and the requirements of the first three years of the combined Bachelor of Commerce or Bachelor of Economics at Honours level/Bachelor of Laws course.

6. The whole of the final two years of the course, as well as part of the first three years, consists of Law subjects.

7. Apart from service subjects for other faculties, and unless specified as from which discipline they must be chosen, Commerce and Economics options may be chosen from any offered by the Faculty of Commerce and Economics. No subject can be counted both as an option and as a prescribed subject.

*Subject to final approval of course change and satisfaction of General Education requirements.

 Combined Arts/Law Course

4760 Bachelor of Arts/Bachelor of Laws

BA LLB

This course gives students the maximum freedom to follow their interests in the Faculty of Arts and Social Sciences. The Law subjects, while fewer in number than in the Jurisprudence/Law course, satisfy the requirements for the award of the professional LLB degree.

The main features of the combined Arts/Law course are as follows:
1. The course is a five year full-time combined course leading to the award of the two degrees of Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Laws (BA LLB).
2. The first three years of the course include (1) Law subjects totalling at least 32 Law credit points and (2) studies in at least three schools or programs offering Arts subjects, to the value of 72 Arts credit points or more, of which at least 36 must be obtained by the completion of an approved major sequence (some schools require more than 36 credit points) in a school or program, and at least 12 must be Upper Level credit points obtained in other schools or programs. For details of approved major sequences, see Undergraduate Study: Subject Descriptions in the Faculty of Arts and Social Sciences Handbook. Where an Arts/Law student completes a Law subject offered to both Arts and Law students the subject is counted as a Law subject.
3. Students must satisfy the normal prerequisites for entry to the Arts and Social Sciences Faculty, and to individual subjects in that faculty. There are no general faculty prerequisites to courses offered by the Faculty of Law but students must study Law subjects in a sequence approved by the Faculty of Law.
4. A student wishing to take the BA degree course at Honours level is required to assume a heavier workload than that required for the study of the BA degree course at Pass level, and approval for his or her program must be obtained from the relevant Arts school and the Head of the School of Law. At least one and possibly two additional years of study are required. Alternatively a student may consider first completing the BA degree course at Honours level (4 years) and then seek admission to the three year LLB degree course for graduates.

5. A student who does not wish to proceed to the combined degree BA LLB, may transfer to the BA program with credit for all subjects completed.

6. The whole of the final two years of the course, as well as part of the first three years, consists of Law subjects.

A typical combined Arts/Law course is set out below. For complete details of Arts subjects students must consult the Faculty of Arts and Social Sciences Handbook.

Year 1

This course provides an opportunity to obtain two degrees of professional importance to the public sector, community service, business and law practice. In addition, the student has the option to work towards a research career in a variety of disciplines.

The main features of the combined Social Science/Law course are as follows:

1. The course is of five years full-time study leading to the award of the two degrees of Bachelor of Social Science and Bachelor of Laws (BSocSc LLB).

2. Students must satisfy the normal prerequisites for entry to the Arts and Social Sciences Faculty, and to individual subjects in that Faculty. There are no general Faculty prerequisites to courses offered by the Faculty of Law but students must study Law subjects in a sequence approved by the Faculty of Law.

3. The first three years of the course include:
   (1) Law subjects totalling at least 32 Law credit points; (2) the Bachelor of Social Science core program totalling 48 Social Science credit points; and (3) an approved major sequence in the Faculty of Arts and Social Sciences of at least 36 Arts credit points (some schools require more than 36 credit points). The major sequence must be taken in one of the following schools: Computer Science, Economic History, Economics, Geography, History, Industrial Relations and Organizational Behaviour, Mathematics, Philosophy, Political Science, Psychology, Science and Technology Studies, Sociology, Spanish and Latin American Studies (History).

4. A student who does not wish to proceed to the combined degree BSocSc LLB may transfer to the BSocSc degree program with credit for all subjects completed.

5. The whole of the final two years of the course, as well as part of the first three years, consists of Law subjects.

6. A student wishing to take the BSocSc degree course at Honours level should consult with the Co-ordinator of the BSocSc degree course before commencing the 4th year of the combined program.

Combined Science/Law Course

4770
Bachelor of Science/Bachelor of Laws

BSc LLB

This course gives the students the maximum freedom to follow their interests in the subjects controlled by the Board of Studies in Science and Mathematics. The Law component is the same as for the combined Arts/Law course although the overall course is probably somewhat heavier, particularly in Years 2 and 3.

The main features of the combined Science/Law course are as follows:

1. The course is a five year full-time combined course leading to the award of the two degrees of Bachelor of Science and Bachelor of Laws (BSc LLB).

2. The first three years of the course include at least 18 units in the Science course together with Law subjects totalling at least 32 credit points. The remaining two years of the course comprise Law subjects totalling at least 49 credit points.

3. The 18 Science course units must contain no more than 8 Level I units of which 2 must be Mathematics 1 and at least 4 Level III units which must be chosen from related disciplines.

4. Students must satisfy the normal prerequisites for entry to the Board of Studies in Science and Mathematics and to individual subjects there.

There are no general faculty prerequisites to courses offered by the Faculty of Law but students must study Law subjects in a sequence approved by the Faculty of Law.

5. Students desiring to enrol in the BSc degree course at Honours level are not able to complete the course in five years and must obtain approval from the Faculty of Law and the Board of Studies in Science and Mathematics for their programs. With the approval of the relevant school and of the Head of the School of Law, a student may follow a standard Honours program in the Science course which can be completed by an additional year of study. Alternatively the student may consider first completing a BSc degree course at Honours level (4 years) and then seek admission to the three year LLB degree course for graduates.

6. The degree of Bachelor of Science is not awarded until the completion of the full five year program, but any student who fails to complete the full program may apply for advanced standing in the Board of Studies in Science and Mathematics.

Students contemplating enrolling in this course should consult fully with the Board of Studies in Science and Mathematics and with the School of Law before enrolment.

A typical structure of a combined Science/Law course is set out below. Subject to timetable restrictions, the full range of Science programs is available to Law students.

Combined Civil Engineering/Law Course

4775
Bachelor of Civil Engineering
Bachelor of Laws

BE LLB

Combined Engineering/Law Course

This course will provide students with professional qualifications in areas of very great importance to the community. The course will prove attractive to students who have in mind a career involving construction developments. Most large construction projects raise a formidable range of legal issues, and there appears to be a need for highly qualified personnel who are able to understand both the engineering and the legal dimensions of such projects, both in Australia and overseas.

1. The course is a six year full-time combined course leading to the award of the two degrees of Bachelor of Engineering and Bachelor of Laws (BE LLB).

2. Students must satisfy the normal prerequisites for entry to the Faculty of Engineering and to individual subjects in that faculty. Students must study Civil Engineering subjects in a sequence approved by the Faculty of Engineering.
There are no general faculty prerequisites to courses offered by the Faculty of Law but students must study law subjects in a sequence approved by the Faculty of Law.

Law electives to the value of 9 credit points

Year 6

Law electives to the value of 24 credit points

Honours

The degree of Bachelor of Engineering may be conferred as a Pass degree or as an Honours degree.

There are two classes of Honours, Class I, and Class II in two divisions. The award and grade of Honours are made in recognition of superior performance throughout the course with a greater weighting on subjects in the later years.

Combined Social Work/Law Course

4785

Bachelor of Social Work/Bachelor of Laws

BSW LLB

This unique and challenging six-year full-time course qualifies students for the professional practice of both social work and law. In the first four years, core social work and legal subjects are combined, while in the final two years students are able to choose from a wide range of specialized electives in both professional disciplines. The final social work field placement is undertaken in a legal setting.

Graduates will be equipped with the knowledge and skills to work in a variety of emerging areas which require an understanding of the law, social work theory and practice and a commitment to social justice. Such areas include consumer protection, tenancy obligations and entitlements, land rights, child custody and family property disputes, social security and welfare rights.

The main features of the combined Social Work/Law course are as follows:

1. The course is a six-year full-time combined course leading to the award of the two degrees of Bachelor of Social Work and Bachelor of Laws (BSW LLB).

2. There are no general course prerequisites for the Social Work course but students must study Social Work subjects in a sequence approved by the Faculty of Professional Studies.

There are no general faculty prerequisites to courses offered by the Faculty of Law but students must study Law subjects in a sequence approved by the Faculty of Law.
The degree of Bachelor of Social Work is not awarded until the completion of the full six-year program, but any student who fails to complete the full program may apply for advanced standing in the Faculty of Professional Studies Social Work degree course. Alternatively, a student may apply for advanced standing in the Faculty of Law Jurisprudence degree course.

The structure of the combined Social Work/Law course is set out below. For complete details of Social Work subjects students must consult the Faculty of Professional Studies handbook.

Law electives to the value of 12 credit points

Year 6
Law electives to the value of 21 credit points

*Students do not take 0.5 hour/week law component of this subject in session 1.

The first two fieldwork placements commence with a 2 or 3 week block (5 days per week) and continue on either 2 or 3 days per week during session time, the final placement is a 60 day block.

+ These subjects are taken concurrently. The Social Work placement is served at Kingsford Legal Centre.
Subject Descriptions

Descriptions of all subjects are presented in alphanumeric order within organizational units. For academic advice regarding a particular subject consult with the contact for the subject as listed. A guide to abbreviations and prefixes is included in the chapter ‘Handbook Guide’, appearing earlier in this book.

Compulsory Subjects

LAWS1010
Litigation
Staff Contact: Dr Jill Hunter
C6 F HPW4

Introduces students to issues and problems in three areas:
Civil pre-trial procedure: focuses on selected topics largely in the context of Supreme Court - actions parties to an action; pleadings; discovery and exchange of information.
Supreme Court Rules are examined to determine the extent to which they facilitate just, accurate and speedy resolution of disputes. Problems of delay and cost are also addressed with particular reference to case-flow management techniques and alternative dispute resolution.
Criminal pre-trial procedure: the law and related issues associated with arrest, warrants, police searches, interrogation and the formulation of pleadings. Comparisons are drawn between the civil and criminal pre-trial processes.
Evidence: a basic understanding of the legal and philosophical principles related to the presentation of evidence in court. A comprehensive examination of the rules of evidence, including those designed to protect the accused at trial; the rule against hearsay evidence; the use of expert evidence; the treatment of unreliable evidence; proof and probability theory and questioning of witnesses in court.
The effect of pretrial procedures on the final outcome at trial highlighted.

LAWS1120
Legal System Torts
Staff Contact: Mr Angus Corbett/Ms Prue Vines
C6 F HPW4

The legal significance of the arrival of the British in Australia; the principal institutions of the legal system, particularly the courts, the legislature, and the executive arms of government; the judiciary; the legal profession; their history, roles, interrelationships, operation and techniques; general constitutional principles and institutions; the notion and consequences of federalism; Bill of Rights proposals; precedent and statutory interpretation, practice and theory; sources of Australian law, including the past and present status of Aboriginal customary law; origins of the common law; classifications within the common law; jurisdiction of Australian courts.
A number of torts, both intentional and unintentional, relating to economic interests as well as personal injury. The primary focus of the course is a thorough and comprehensive introduction to the tort of negligence. There is a detailed discussion of specific issues such as recovery for personal injury, for nervous shock, for pure economic loss as well as affirmative duties of care. In addition there is an introduction to the law relating to limitation periods, vicarious liability, defences to the tort of negligence and the law relating to the assessment of damages. The approach to teaching this material is via extensive discussion of a relatively limited number of leading cases. Students are thus able to build up an understanding of this body of law through their own analysis of case law and statute law.

A second strand of this course is to introduce students to the wide ranging debates about the appropriate role and function of tort law. This requires developing a working knowledge of a feminist and economic analysis of tort law and of the various corrective justice theories of tort. In developing this working knowledge students will be exposed to secondary materials which build upon and refer to the cases and statutes which are included in the course.

LAWS1420
Contracts
Staff Contact: Mr Denis Harley
C4.5 F HPW S1 2, S2 4
Note/s: Taken concurrently with LAWS2140 as a composite subject

This course examines the nature of contractual obligations and how parties make and break contracts. Topics include: how contracts are formed and the necessary elements of a validly constituted contract; express and implied terms of a contract and how such terms are imported into the contract; misrepresentation, mistake or unconscionability; consequences where a contract is induced by misrepresentation, mistake or unconscionability; exemption clauses; estoppel and contract; contracts which are illegal under statute or contrary to public policy; remedies for breach of contract and the damages payable for such breach.

Students are encouraged to examine the role of contract law from an historical and contemporary standpoint.

LAWS1610
Criminal Law
Staff Contact: A/Prof David Brown
C6 F HPW4

The principles of criminal law and criminal liability. Aims to: promote and refine research and social policy analysis skills; develop a rigorous analytic and socially oriented approach to the study of criminal law; investigate the constitution of concepts like crime, criminal and criminal law; question traditional approaches which assume a unified set of general principles; suggest an approach to criminal law as a number of diverse fields of regulation; acknowledge the importance of forms of regulation outside the criminal law; examine empirical material on the actual operation of the N.S.W. criminal process such as court statistics and a court observation exercise; examine the substantive rules developed in selected criminal offence areas; stress the importance and relevance of criminal law in an understanding of law, even (and especially) for those who do not intend to practise in the area. Topics include: the phenomenon of crime, the criminal process, criminal responsibility, homicide offences, public order offences, drug offences, offences against the person, offences of... dishonest acquisition, general defences, complicity, conspiracy, sentencing and penal practices.

LAWS2140
Public Law
Staff Contact: Mr Robert Shelly
C1.5 S1 HPW2
Note/s: Taken concurrently with LAWS1420 as a composite subject

This course introduces the students to the concept of "public law", its methods of reasoning, history and fundamental principles. It deals with the fundamental principles of constitutional and administrative law, with the ethical precepts underlying our constitutional system; with the essential features of our system of government, and with the increasing role of public international law. The course also introduces students to comparative law, especially the public law assumptions of the Civil Law system. Topics include the concept of public law; theories and history of constitutionalism; comparative methods of enforcing constitutional precepts; Australia's constitutional development; the separation of powers, responsible government and constitutional conventions; and the republicanism debate.

LAWS2150
Federal Constitutional Law
Staff Contact: Prof George Winterton / Mr Keven Booker
C3 S1 or S2 HPW4

Federal constitutional law, stressing the legislative and judicial powers of the Commonwealth and the judicial interpretation by the High Court of the extent of those powers, in particular: trade and commerce, external affairs, corporations, appropriation, grants and taxation powers, family law and industrial law powers, inconsistency of Commonwealth and State laws, freedom of interstate trade and commerce, excise and implied limitations on Commonwealth and State powers. Techniques and approaches adopted by the High Court in interpreting the Australian Constitution, and occasionally, federal executive power.

Further study of constitutional law may be undertaken in LAWS2100 The High Court of Australia.

LAWS2160
Administrative Law
Staff Contact: Ms Melinda Jones
C3 S1 or S2 HPW4

This course considers the law concerning the accountability and control of government officials. Topics covered include: the regulation of delegated legislation; the problem of corruption; the duty to give reasons for administration decisions; freedom of information, the Ombudsman, the Administrative Appeals Tribunal; and judicial review of administrative action [the principles of legality and procedural fairness].

LAWS3010
Property and Equity
Staff Contact: A/Prof Chris Rossiter
C6 F HPW4

The basic principles of the law of property, transcending the traditional boundaries of real and personal property. For reasons of time and convenience, most topics are those usually considered in the context of 'real property'.

Enquiry into the meaning of the concepts of property and the purposes that are or ought to be fulfilled by the law of property. Some of the traditional concepts and classifications adopted by the common law in the content of the study of fixtures. Topics: possession as a proprietary interest in land and goods; some basic concepts such as seisin and title; the fragmentation of proprietary interests, including the doctrines of tenure and estates; an introduction to future interests; the development of legal and equitable interests, including a comparative treatment of their nature, extent and sphere of enforceability and an introduction to trusts; legal and equitable remedies; the statutory regulation of proprietary interests in land, including an examination of the Torrens and deeds registration systems; co-ownership; an introduction to security interests; the acquisition of proprietary interests; the alienability of interests including trusts for sale; commercial transactions involving leasehold estates in land and bailment of goods.

LAWS6210
Law, Lawyers and Society
Staff Contact: Dr Stan Ross
C3 S1 or S2 HPW4

1. The lawyer/client relationship, including who exercises control and the lawyers' duties to accept work, to keep client confidences, to act competently and to avoid conflicts of interest; the social implications of lawyers' professional behaviour. 2. The adversary system of litigation and the lawyers' role therein, both generally and specifically as defence counsel and as prosecutor in criminal cases. 3. The structure of the profession and methods of regulation including discussion of the concept of professionalism, control of admission, discipline generally and conducting court specifically; selection and control of the judiciary. 4. Issues relating to the delivery of legal services, including specialization in lawyers' practice, the structure and availability of legal aid, the regulation of lawyers' fees, the extent of the lawyers' monopoly and the role of non-lawyers in delivering legal services.

LAWS7410
Legal Research and Writing 1
Staff Contact: Ms Irene Nemes
C2 S1 HPW2

The literature, both legal and non-legal, relevant to the law in Australia. The contents of a law library, how it works and is ordered and how lawyers go about using it to find the law. Practice in handling the principal legal materials in the law library, notably law reports, collections of statutes, bibliographies, periodical indexes, digests and material on law reform. An introduction to case analysis and statutes. Principles of legal writing, including plain English, citation practice, word processing and logical argument. An introduction to the use of computerized legal research methods. The methods and objectives of legal and empirical research.

LAWS7420
Legal Research and Writing 2
Staff Contact: Ms Irene Nemes
C1 S2 HPW2

A revision of legal research skills acquired in LAWS7410 Legal Research and Writing 1, particularly the use of Australian digests, law reform materials, loose-leaf services and legal encyclopaedias. Practice in finding and updating the law on a topic. Foreign Legal systems and International law. Further instruction on the use of computers for retrieval of legal materials.

LAWS7430
Research Component
Staff Contact: Mr Ian Cameron
Note/s: Taken after or concurrently with LAWS7420.
This subject must be taken either concurrently with or after LAWS7420 Legal Research and Writing 2, though students are advised where possible to complete Legal Research and Writing 2 first so that they have a command of the relevant research techniques. Students must select one from amongst the subjects for which they are enrolled in which a piece of assessable work (a research essay or moot) will be allocated for Research Component, and must submit a Research Component Form to the Administrative Assistant (Undergraduate) by the end of Week 4 in the Session in which they elect to undertake Research Component. This form must identify the subject in which the work for Research Component will be undertaken, and must be signed by the teacher in the subject. Students must attach to the completed research essay or moot submission a written research report, outlining the research methods adopted in preparation for the essay or moot. The piece of assessable work chosen for allocation to Research Component must be worth no less than 30% of the total mark (in the case of a three-credit point subject, or 15% of the total mark in the case of a six-credit point subject). The assessment of Research Component will be made on the basis of the research report, in addition to the separate assessment of the essay or moot for the purpose of the subject selected. All subjects offered in the Law School are prima facie available to Research Component students for this purpose. Where for compelling reason no provision for a suitable essay or moot is or can be made in a program of assessment of a particular subject, the teacher of that subject may ask the student to select another subject. Research Component may also be satisfied by taking one or more of the Research Thesis electives (LAWS8510, LAWS8520, LAWS8530). There is no formal teaching in LAWS7430 Research Component and no credit points are awarded for it.

LAWS8320
Legal Theory
Staff Contact: A/Prof Martin Krygier
C3 S1 or S2 HPW4
Introduction to philosophical questions which underline the practical workings of the law. The course concentrates on questions to do with legal reasoning, particularly the reasoning of judges, and of moral reasoning; and the interrelationships between law and morals and law and politics.

LAWS8820
Law and Social Theory
Staff Contact: A/Prof Martin Krygier
C3 S1 or S2 HPW4
Examination of sociological assumptions about law, about society, and about the relationships between law, legal institutions and social ordering. Topics include: The role and functions of law within modern society, the extent to which law embodies implicit social theories and the nature of these theories, and the implications of social research on our understanding of the place of law in society.
A study of the principal private law remedies evolved by the common law and by equity through an examination of relevant historical, economic and political perspectives. The course analyses the nominate remedies of Australian law by reference to the remedial goals of the legal system, namely compensation, restitution, punishment and coercion. The relationship between the various remedies is also explored, as are the ways in which remedies are enforced in practice.
Through this analysis a detailed consideration of specific legal issues such as recovery for personal injury, nervous shock, pure economic loss, wrongful birth, and affirmative duties to rescue. In tackling these issues there is specific treatment of the relationship between the law of tort and other areas of law such as contracts, administrative law and various statutes such as the Trade Practices Act. The tort of defamation is not covered in this course.

A second strand of the courses traverses the various debates about the function and role of the law of tort in general and of the tort of negligence in particular. This involves attention to an economic analysis of tort, general theories which propose the use of tort law to achieve regulatory goals, a feminist analysis and various corrective justice approaches to tort law. In this section there is discussion of statutory reform of tort law both via reform of particular areas of doctrine and via the introduction of statutory schemes of compensation and regulation.

LAWS1480
Advanced Criminal Law
Staff Contact: A/Prof George Zdenkowski
C3 SS HPW4

Builds upon the introduction to criminal law and process in the compulsory core curriculum. Examines such matters as: Criminal law and the constitutions; Commonwealth Criminal law; common law and code jurisdictions; managing complex criminal trials; crime and the environment; confiscating the proceeds of crime; criminal law and corporations; women and crime; crime and racial vilification; crime and human rights; privatisation of criminal justice; codification; reform. Topics may vary from year to year.

LAWS1510
Family Law
Staff Contact: Dr Owen Jessep
C3 SS HPW4

The legislative and constitutional background to family law in Australia, the structure of the Family Court of Australia, including the place of counselling within the court, the establishment of formal family relationships including the regulation of marriage and the approach of the law to informal family relationships; adoption; state intervention into the family relationship including the withdrawal of children from parental custody and the protection of family members against violence.

The problems created by the breakdown of marriage and other family relationships require close reference to the principles established by the Family Law Act concerning divorce, custody and the settlement of financial disputes. A study of the Act includes an examination of the role of lawyers and others in the process of dissolution and reorganization of families. The subject encourages students to assess the actual impact of the law, and to work with interdisciplinary materials.

LAWS1550
Feminist Legal Theory
Staff Contact: A/Prof Regina Graycar
C3 SS HPW4

Examines the complex role played by legal rules and practices in the construction and maintenance of inequality between women and men. Introduces students to feminist jurisprudence and significant debates within it, including the multiple meanings of 'equality' (for example, the sameness/difference debate and critiques of it); the public/private dichotomy; and the ways in which 'black letter' law is gendered. In addition to the broad theoretical material, topics covered may include the three-part system by which women have access to financial support: viz, paid work, dependence on men, and dependence on the state; injuries to women and the ways in which women are distinctively harmed; the legal construction and regulation of women's connection with others: as wives, mothers etc; strategies for change (is the practice of law, in particular the adversary system, the only alternative for dealing with disputes; would genderneutral legal language change a gender-specific world?).

LAWS1620
Families and Finances
Staff Contact: Dr Owen Jessep
C3 SS HPW4

A foundation for legal practice and a critical examination of the operation of the legal system in a particular area. There is room for some variation in topics according to the interests of the teacher and students, but in general the topics covered are:

1. Matrimonial property and maintenance disputes concentrating on issues not explored in depth in LAWS1510 Family Law, eg problems of enforcement, drafting maintenance agreements, involvement of third parties in family disputes. 2. Social security arrangements in so far as they relate to the family, eg widows' pensions, supporting parents' benefits, relationship of these to Family Law Act proceedings. 3. Taxation issues, specifically related to breakdown of the family, but including some analysis of taxation policy in relation to the family. 4. Family provision (formerly 'testator's family maintenance'). 5. Bankruptcy in so far as it relates to a competition between the creditors and the bankrupt's family. 6. The legal framework for the public and private support of children. 7. Superannuation arrangements affecting families.

Relationship between the systems of family law, taxation, social security and testator's family maintenance. Broader policy questions, such as those identified in the Finer Report (UK), the Hambly Report (Australia) and other studies including an analysis of community property regimes and an assessment of their suitability for Australia.

It is desirable that students have completed LAWS1510 Family Law.

LAWS1630
Children and the Law
Staff Contact: Ms Jennifer Bargen
C3 SS HPW4

Aspects of children's law not dealt with in LAWS1510 Family Law and aspects of practice relating to children, such as the role of children's legal representatives in children's courts and in other courts and tribunals. The present law in Australia is considered as well as the historical development of laws relating to children, proposed reforms, and comparative material from other countries. The materials draw on disciplines other than law (such as sociology, child development theory) so that legal developments can be related to the position of children in society and different perspectives on their rights and interests. The subject is intended both for students who are interested in legal practice relating to children, and those who wish to broaden their understanding of the legal system by a critical examination of how it operates in what is a controversial and rapidly changing area.

There may be some variation in the topics to be covered, according to the interests of the particular teacher and students, but in general the subject deals with the concept of children's rights; child welfare laws; the application of the criminal law to children and the jurisdiction and procedures in children's courts; education; foster care, and other forms of alternative care.

It is desirable that students have completed LAWS1510 Family Law.

LAWS1720
Crime and Society
Staff Contact: Mr Dirk Meure
C3 SS HPW4

Some of the issues arising from the relationship of crime to society. Crime as a dividing practice in the construction of normality. A critical history of traditional and current accounts of crime and delinquency. The subject is sourced from a variety of literatures. Topics include: the dramatization of evil and the politics of social control; a genealogy of delinquency and its psychological and sociological explanations; theories of conformity and alienation; crime and discipline; women, crime and power.

LAWS1730
The Criminal Justice System
Staff Contact: A/Prof David Brown
C3 SS HPW4

The operation and main institutions of the criminal justice system. The materials are socio-legal in orientation; with an increasing emphasis on popular cultural sources; they emphasise process rather than legal rules. Historical and contemporary issues are examined within their broader political and discursive context. In examining various forms of discretionary decision-making in the criminal process an attempt is made to identify practices specific to class, race and gender. Topics covered from year to year vary according to current inquiries, campaigns and controversies.

Topics: reporting crime, criminal statistics, media approaches to crime, popular cultural perspectives, crime fiction, cop shows, fictional presentations of particular cases, serial killers, the death penalty, police discretion, contemporary developments in social control, deaths in custody, inquests, policing of particular groups, public order policing, criminal violence, plea bargaining, miscarriages of justice, and reform in the criminal justice system.

Law and Medicine
Staff Contact: Mr Brian Bromberger
C3 SS HPW4

Selected problems of a medico-legal nature presented in a way which enables the lawyer to handle legal problems of another discipline. Topics: typical medical case management both by the practitioner and hospital, problems of disability evaluation and rehabilitation, the application of forensic sciences to the settlement of disputes, the doctor as an expert witness, regulation and liability of those engaged in the health professions, public health regulation, medico-moral problems such as abortion and sterilization, legal problems of addition and issues which arise as a result of innovations in medicine such as human experimentation, transplantation and anatomical gifts and the operation of the Mental Health Act.

LAWS2100
The High Court of Australia
Staff Contact: Prof George Winterton / Mr Keven Booker
C3 SS HPW4

The role of the High Court of Australia as a legal, political and social institution in the framework of Australian government. Topics include: the relationship of the High Court to the other institutions of government; the relationship of the Court to other courts within the judicial system; the historical development of the Court and its distinctive features through different periods of that development; the Court's composition and internal working, its style of legal reasoning, its contribution to the development of distinctively Australian law in selected areas and the place of its individual members in the Australian judicial tradition. The subject is divided broadly into four parts. 1. The structure and operation of the Court; 2. the Court's role and record in public law; 3. the Court's role and record in private law; and 4. an analysis, building on the earlier part, of issues relating to the judicial process in the Court. About half of the subject is based on discussion of prepared materials, and the other half on research essays by each student presented to the class in the style of a seminar.

LAWS2210
Advanced Administrative Law
Staff Contact: Prof Mark Aronson
C3 SS HPW4

Builds upon the administrative law topics covered in the compulsory part of the curriculum. Content varies from year to year because of the need to deal with contemporary problems, and a corpus of law which is ever more subject to reform both by legislation and by judicial decisionmaking. In some areas a comparative approach is taken to expose the many solutions possible in the search for administrative justice. The core of the subject is in the fields of judicial and tribunal review of administrative action, particularly in light of governmental moves to deregulate and to introduce "private" commercial and managerial values into the "public" bureaucracies. Other topics included are freedom of information; contracts and torts of the Crown and other public authorities; ombudsmen; delegated legislation; and public corporations.
LAWS2230
Communications Law
Staff Contact: Ms Holly Raiche
C3 SS HPW4
The course will cover a range of communications issues including laws covering communications generally such as defamation and contempt and other forms of legal control. It will examine both the technology of communications (spectrum use and management, and telecommunications networks and services) and its regulation under legislation. The licensing of a range of broadcasting services and controls over their content will also be examined, as well as the powers, functions and processes of the Australian Broadcasting Authority. Because much of the legislation is new and the subject of continuing debate, the course will examine policy debates as well as criticism and analysis of the current legislative frameworks for communications.

LAWS2240
Mining Law
Staff Contact: School Office
C3 SS HPW4
The framework of regulation for mining in Australia and the possible legal structures that might be used in establishing a natural resources project. The legal questions that arise in the financing of such a project. The subject focuses on New South Wales which, like other States, has extensive legislation relating to the mining industry. This entails, however, substantial treatment of federal regulation in the areas of foreign investment, export control, exchange control, Aborigines, uranium and offshore exploration and mining. Constitutional problems arising from the Federal/State relationship. The revenue, environmental and international trade aspects of minerals projects in Australia. Policy questions raised by these matters.

LAWS3020
Advanced Property and Equity
Staff Contact: A/Prof Chris Rossiter
C3 SS HPW4
Explores in detail important equitable principles governing the creation, transfer and priority of interests in property, both real and personal. Topics include: the nature of fraud in equity; fiduciary relationships; undue influence; penalties and forfeiture. The course also considers equity's characteristic response to problems of injustice and unfairness as exemplified by the development, (as institutions and/or remedial devices,) of constructive trusts and proprietary estoppel. The distinction between notions of property and contract is studied, particularly in relation to recent developments estoppel and relief against forfeiture of proprietary interests. Covenants governing the use of land at common law and in equity are studied in relation to general law and Torrens Title land.

C3 SS HPW4

The nature, history and classification of trusts; the use of trusts in modern law; social control through trusts; express private trusts; purpose trusts; discretionary and protective trusts; the creation and variation of private trusts; trusts in commerce; resulting and constructive trusts; charitable and public trusts; the significance of charitable status; powers and duties of trustees.

A useful introduction to LAWS3050 Succession which develops a number of themes which are raised by a consideration of the law of trusts.

LAWS3050

Succession

Staff Contact: Ms Prue Vines

C3 SS HPW4

The law governing succession to property on death including the rules relating to wills, administration of assets, family provision and intestate succession. Equitable doctrines relating to the law of wills and administration of estates, including construction of wills, marshalling, satisfaction, ademption, and donationes mortis causa.

Emphasis is placed on the Australian, especially the NSW law, but there is a significant comparative aspect to this course. Civil law systems, Aboriginal customary law and Islamic law of inheritance, inter alia, are considered. Although the rules of equity constitute a theme common to this subject and LAWS3020 and LAWS3030, there is no significant overlap. Students interested in both the law of trusts and the law of succession should do both LAWS3030 and LAWS3050; in that event it is preferable to do LAWS3030 first.

LAWS3210

Conveyancing and Land Transactions

Staff Contact: A/Prof Chris Rossiter

C3 SS HPW4

The law of vendor and purchaser with special emphasis on the standard form contract of sale of land in use in New South Wales. Aims to benefit those intending to practise at the bar in the property and equity area as well as those who will be involved with conveyancing work as solicitors.

Topics: whether a binding contract of sale exists; auction contracts; vendor disclosure and anti-gazumping legislation; the requirements of the Statute of Frauds; exchange of contracts, proper preparation of the contract of sale, detailed examination of the standard Law Society approved contract of sale, old system conveyancing, Strata Title conveyancing, the law concerning notices to complete and other remedies available to vendor and purchaser.

LAWS3410

Environmental Law

Staff Contact: Mr Ross Ramsay

C3 SS HPW4

This subject examines environmental law in both a theoretical and a practical sense. From the theoretical point of view, environmental law is considered through interdisciplinary perspectives in a policy setting. The non-legal perspectives in terms of which environmental law is considered include ecology, economics and philosophy.

The practical orientation of the course is toward developing an understanding of the legal framework for environmental decision making in Australia, particularly in N.S.W. Topics to be covered include the relevance of ecology to environmental law, environmental ethics, environmental economics, international environmental law, Commonwealth powers with respect to the environment, a range of Commonwealth and NSW legislation relating to the environment, and different legal techniques for enhancing protection of the environment (eg. regulation through the criminal law, through traditional common law techniques such as nuisance and private covenants, through economic incentive schemes, and through systems of consents and licenses). Alternative Dispute Resolution techniques will also be examined.

Attention is also paid to: (1) the part played by political and administrative discretion in the field of environmental decision-making, with some emphasis on the tensions which exist between various levels and arms of government; (2) the role of public participation in the decision making process; and (3) environmental law in other countries, particularly the U.S.

Students are encouraged to take an interest in topical environmental issues.

LAWS4010

Business Associations 1

Staff Contact: Mr Angus Corbett

C3 SS HPW4

Note: Students are advised to complete LAWS3010 Property and Equity before undertaking Business Associations 1.

An introduction to a number of important legal and theoretical aspects of the operation of business companies. In addition, there is a brief overview of partnership law.

The company law component of the subject falls into two parts. The first deals with the process and incidents of incorporation. The topics dealt with in this part include the derivation of the modern company; an introduction to the regulatory structures for companies and the securities industry in Australia; the formation of the company; the privileged position of the private company; an introduction to the corporate constitution, organs and capital; promoters’ duties; preincorporation contracts; the separate personality of the corporation (and its exceptions); corporate liability in crime.

The balance of the subject is concerned with the structure and governance of the company. It examines the corporate organs (the board of directors and the general meeting) and the division of corporate powers between them; the duties and liabilities of directors and other officers; the remedies available to shareholders for the enforcement of directors’ duties and protection against oppression or overreaching by controllers.

While much of this company law doctrine is equally applicable to the large company as to the small enterprise, the subject stresses the problems, processes and transactions typically encountered by small incorporated business.
Areas of company law and securities regulation not covered in LAWS4010 Business Associations 1, and particularly those of relevance to larger companies. Students who wish to complete a comprehensive study of company law and securities regulation are advised to take this subject in addition to LAWS4010.

The subject deals with topics within the fields of corporate finance and securities regulation (including the regulation of takeovers). Topics studied will be drawn from the following: (1) corporate finance including classes of shares, company accounts and audit, the protection of share capital, and the law of dividends; (2) securities markets and their regulation including insider trading and other market abuse, and the hearing and investigative powers of the Australian Securities Commission; (3) public issues of corporate securities including philosophies of new issue regulation, listing and quotation, prospectus requirements, liability for prospectus contents, and prescribed interests; (4) the regulation of takeovers; (5) corporate insolvency.

Notes: Students should have completed LAWS4010 Business Associations 1 or be taking that course concurrently with LAWS4450.

Areas of income tax introduced in LAWS4440 Elements of Income Tax Law in greater depth. Several areas of income tax law and other revenue law not touched on in the earlier subject. Topics: 1. taxation of partnerships, trusts and companies, including capital gains tax; 2. assignment of income; 3. tax avoidance and evasion - analysis of general, and specific, antiavoidance legislation and penalties legislation; 4. an introduction to aspects of international tax including some international tax agreements; 5. tax decision making and review in the context of a mass decision making process; 6. an introduction to stamp duty.

LAWS4540
International Trade Law
Staff Contact: Mr Mark Buchanan
C3 SS HPW4

Notes: There are no prerequisites for this course, however students may find that having taken or taking concurrently, Public International Law, Business Associations 1 and Commercial Law would prove to be particularly helpful.

A study of the Legal Environment of International Trade Transactions, consisting of the role and structure of International legal and economic Institutions, national government regulation affecting trade, and the 'private' law of the international transaction itself. The course begins by exploring the International Trade Regime including the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade and related multilateral institutions. Structural and Transactional aspects of international trade law follow including Foreign Direct Investment regulation, Methods and Forms of international trade law and investment (eg. Joint Ventures), protection of Intellectual Property, Licensing and Technology Transfers, Import/Export Transactions, Customs, Transport and International Payments (eg. Letters of Credit). International Commercial Dispute Resolution is also covered. The course concludes with Selected Current Issues in Trade Policy and Ethical and Social Responsibility (eg. Protectionism, Anti-dumping, Agricultural Trade, New International Economic Order, International Trade and the Environment, and MNC's and International Codes of Conduct).

LAWS4610
Information Technology Law
Staff Contact: A/Prof Graham Greenleaf
C3 SS HPW4

This 'computer law' course examines the law governing the use of computing and data communications technologies - the law of the 'information superhighway'. The main topics are property in computerised data and software, 'computer crime', data communications law (telecommunications regulation concerning data), data protection and privacy, tortious and other civil liability (for software, databases and telecommunications), evidentiary problems, and computerised commercial transactions, including electronic funds transfer systems (EFTS) and electronic document interchange (EDI). The social and legal importance of the interconnection of computers by telecommunications, is examined in the light of theories of 'post industrial society'. No prior computing knowledge is required, and no computer use is required during the course. Computing and data communications concepts are explained where necessary.

LAWS4620
Computer Applications to Law
Staff Contact: A/Prof Graham Greenleaf
C3 SS HPW4

A 'hands on' introduction to the uses lawyers can make of information technology, including expert systems (systems that give legal 'advice'), hypertext, free text retrieval and automated document generation. The strengths and limitations of each technology are assessed in light of the particular needs of legal reasoning, source materials and practice. Examples of the practical uses of each technology are demonstrated and considered critically, including litigation support systems, sentencing systems and systems for advice on government benefits.

Students will design and create their own legal databases, hypertext, document generators and expert systems using programs provided. Prior computer knowledge is not required, but some experience in the use of microcomputers, and particularly word processing, is an advantage. It is also desirable to have completed, or take at the same time, Legal Research and Writing 2, or to have equivalent experience in computerised legal research. All classes take place in the Faculty Microcomputer Lab and enrolment is therefore limited.
LAWS4800
The Law of Banking

A Research Thesis project shall be approved by the School of Law if 1. the student has an academic background in legal study sufficient to handle the subject matter of the thesis in an adequate manner (an average mark of 65 percent in previous Law subjects is normally required). 2. the student has formulated a clearly defined project, which has been approved by a teacher in the field concerned who agrees to act as supervisor. Supervision may be conjoint, but at least one supervisor must be a full-time member of academic staff. A group research project may be undertaken (by two or three students, but no more) provided that a statement of the proposed division of work between members of the group is approved by the staff member agreeing to act as supervisor.

The School of Law will initially limit its approval for a Research Thesis to a 3 credit point project. A student who has received approval for a 3 credit point project may be given subsequent approval to have his or her project transferred to a 6 credit point project (LAWS6510). Similarly, a student who has received approval for a 6 credit point...
The built environment and policy in other jurisdictions as well as social theories of housing policies, provision of public housing, alternatives to the Strata Titles Act and Landlord and Tenant Tenancies Act. Other relevant legislation will be examined. In addition, attention will be given to procedure with particular reference to the Residential Tenancies Act.

Examination

Two examiners, one of whom may be the supervisor, shall be appointed for each thesis by the School of Law. The final date for submission of the thesis shall be the last day of session for which the candidate is registered for the thesis or such other date as the examiners may agree.

Examiners may require a candidate or group of candidates to attend an oral examination on the subject matter of the thesis; examiners may require a thesis to be resubmitted under such conditions as the examiners may determine.

* These electives permit selected students to obtain credit for approved research projects undertaken individually or in groups. No student shall be permitted to obtain more than 6 credit points in any combination of the subjects LAWS6510, LAWS6520, LAWS6530.

LAWS6820 Social Security Law

Staff Contact: A/Prof Regina Graycar

C3 SS HPW4

The role of the state in the provision of community resources, in particular in the redistribution of taxation revenue through the income maintenance system, and the role of law in the redistribution process. The major focus is an examination of the law, policy and practices of the Australian Social Security system. Other matters covered include: an examination of the causes and extent of poverty in Australia; the role of the state in the alleviation of poverty; the relationship between the Social Security Act 1991 (Cth) and other Commonwealth and State laws, such as the Income Tax Assessment Act 1936 (Cth); the Family Law Act 1975 (Cth) the Child Support legislation and common law and statutory compensation systems; the role of law in effecting social change in general and redistribution in particular. Some of these topics will be dealt with in outline only.

LAWS6830 Housing Law

Staff Contact: Mr Brendan Edgeworth

C3 SS HPW4

This course examines residential tenancy law, practice and procedure with particular reference to the Residential Tenancies Act. Other relevant legislation will be examined such as the Strata Titles Act and Landlord and Tenant (Amendment) Act. In addition, attention will be given to housing policies, provision of public housing, alternatives to traditional homelessness strategies and tenancy law reform. There will be some focus on residential tenancy law and policy in other jurisdictions as well as social theories of the built environment.

LAWS6910 Discrimination and the Law

Staff Contact: Ms Doreen Boniface

C3 SS HPW4

This subject deals with the law and policy of anti-discrimination and equal opportunity. The problem of arbitrary denials of equality to many different sorts of groups, in many different aspects of life, is one which is increasingly recognised. The law has an important role as an instrument of public policy in this area. Legal mechanisms and agencies, particularly those in Australia, which seek to end or control discrimination and in particular the principles and doctrines which are applicable in this area of law. For the purposes of illustration, discrimination on the grounds of race, sex, and disability are stressed but other grounds will also be discussed. Some aims of the course are to provide an understanding of the concept of discrimination; examine international instruments eg the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights, relevant to the prohibition of certain kinds of discrimination; provide a good working knowledge of Australian anti-discrimination law (broadly understood, and covering legislation, informal and formal decision making and procedures and their practical operation); provide a critical assessment of law and its limits in addressing the perceived problems of discrimination.

LAWS6920 Aborigines and the Law

Staff Contact: Prof Garth Nettheim

C3 SS HPW4

Legal issues that have particular application to Aboriginal people. Topics include: questions of definition and identity, sovereignty, land rights, legislative power, recognition of Aboriginal law, criminal justice issues, Aboriginal legal aid, the use of civil law, aspects of anti-discrimination and human rights legislation, relevant principles and procedures in international law, and proposals for a Treaty. Reference is made to comparative law materials from comparable countries such as Canada, USA, New Zealand. Reference is also made to anthropological and other non-legal material.

LAWS 7200 Clinical Legal Experience (Intensive)

Staff Contact: Mr Simon Rice

C6 S1 S2 HPW16

Clinical legal education takes students out of the classroom and places them in a law practice. This is to enable students to analyse the effect of law in practice, and to engender in students an appreciation of the ethical, social and practical complexity of the legal system. Students are required to attend the Faculty's clinic, Kingsford Legal Centre, two full days a week. The clinic is a community legal centre which provides a free legal service to the local community. Students manage clients' files under the supervision of experienced solicitors. This involves the interviewing and counselling of clients, and the research, drafting and preparation necessary to resolve legal difficulties by litigation or other means.

In addition to two days' attendance, students are asked to attend evening advice sessions during which they interview people attending for legal advice from the solicitors. A daily meeting and a weekly class provide an opportunity for discussion and analysis of students' experiences, and for instruction in legal procedure and skills. There are regular opportunities to attend Court.

As well as clients’ files, the Centre operates education and project files. Students have the opportunity to take part in community education, and in policy and reform work.

The Centre is a placement unit for the School of Social Work, and law students work with social work students from time to time.

The subject is offered in both teaching sessions but not over the summer vacation. A student who has enrolled in and who has passed or failed LAWS7210 Clinical Legal Experience may not enrol in this subject without the approval of the Associate Dean. It is suggested that the subject not be done in the final session of a student’s studies, as the subject may enable students to put further studies into a social and practical perspective.

LAWS8330 Constitutionalism
Staff Contact: Dr Arthur Glass / A/Prof Martin Krygier
C3 SS HPW4

This course will introduce students to discussion and criticism of the institutional and theoretical underpinnings of a liberal-democratic constitutional order. It will do this by way both of examination of some of the key moments in constitutional development and design, and of discussion of some of the central issues of political and legal theory which constitutionalism raises. Among the topics which will be considered are: 1. Philosophical history of the notion of constitutionalism and of such related ideas as: sovereignty, rights, the rule of law, separation of powers, republicanism, and federalism; 2. Issues in the design of constitutional order: the American Founding Fathers, the nineteenth century idea of the Rechtsstaat (law-governed state), and contemporary constitutional experiments in post-communist Europe; 3. Constitutional interpretation, particularly the problem of indeterminacy of constitutional and legal texts; judicial review; the accommodation of a rigid constitutional text to social change; 4. What are the sources of constitutional legitimacy?

LAWS8410 Comparative Law
Staff Contact: Prof George Winterton
C3 SS HPW4

Some of the principal legal systems of the world, and the advantages in looking at legal problems from a perspective broader than that of one’s own legal system. Three parts: 1. an introduction to the Modern Civil Law, Roman, Hindu, Islamic and Marxist legal systems, wherever possible comparing them with the Common Law system, and with each other. The history and uses of Comparative Law, and a discussion of the manner in which the Civil Law and Common Law systems have interacted with the others, and with each other; 2. a more detailed study of the Civil Law system, through the medium of criminal law and administrative law in Europe, especially France, against the background of the common law; 3. student-led seminars examining, comparatively, topics of world-wide concern, eg consumer protection, the role of the corporation in modern society, protection of civil liberties, judicial review of administration action, and environmental protection.

LAWS8420 Pacific Islands Legal Systems
Staff Contact: Dr Owen Jessep
C3 SS HPW4

Change, conflict and continuity in indigenous legal systems of the Pacific Islands (as well as other parts of the Third World) against the background of colonialism,
'modemization', and economic underdevelopment. Particular nations looked at include Papua New Guinea, Fiji, Vanuatu, the Solomon Islands, New Caledonia, French Polynesia, Western Samoa, Tonga, Kiribati, the Federated States of Micronesia, Belau and the Marshall Islands. Topics include: the political status of Pacific Island entities and their constitutional development; theories relating to legal 'development'; the role of law courts and the legal profession in changing society; the nature of traditional society, colonialism, and social and economic change; the nature of customary law and dispute settlement and its integration with imported Western law and legal institutions; changing family law, land law and notions of criminal responsibility; theories of economic underdevelopment; international law problems facing Pacific Island nations; issues of ideology and gender. By developing an appreciation of the theoretical and practical problems arising from the attempted imposition, or adoption, of Western legal concepts and institutions in non Western countries, it is hoped that students will develop a more flexible, enquiring and critical attitude towards the legal institutions of their own society.

Introduction to Roman Law

Staff Contact: Dr Richard Bauman
C3 SS HPW4

There are no prerequisites and no special knowledge of Latin is required other than the usual legal tags.

The law of Ancient Rome presented so as to illustrate the following: (a) how laws emerged to meet the needs of a developing society, (b) how law reform in the more developed stages of that society adapted to changing social, political and economic conditions, (c) aspects of Roman Law which are especially meaningful to students who are being trained in a Common Law system, (d) Roman law concepts which form the basis of modern Civil Law systems and today play a key role in the European Economic Community.

Historical topics: Equity as an instrument of law reform; the opinions of those learned in the law; legislation; codification; Justinian. Substantive topics: Family law with special reference to marriage and divorce; property with special reference to possession, ownership and servitudes (easements); testamentary succession; trusts; contract with special reference to stipulation, sale, lease, partnership (including corporate personality); delict (torts); criminal law with special reference to jury-courts.

Roman Law in Medieval and Modern Europe

Staff Contact: Dr Richard Bauman
C3 S2 HPW4

There are no prerequisites for this subject and no special knowledge of Latin is required other than the usual legal tags.

The interaction between law and society is strikingly illustrated by the evolution of Civil Law in Medieval and Modern Europe. The subject proceeds from the Germanic invasions of Western Europe over the 4th and subsequent centuries, and the impact on the law of both invaders and invaders. It then turns to the 'rediscovery' of Roman Law in Europe in the 11th and subsequent centuries and the gradual absorption of Roman Law into the legal systems of the German Empire, France, Spain, Italy and Scotland. The culmination is the Reception of Roman Law in those countries, followed by the Napoleonic Code and its offshoots which incorporated Roman Law in a codified form but with the basic principles largely preserved.

Japanese Law

Staff Contact: Ms Annette Marfording
C3 SS HPW4

This course is intended to convey an introduction to the Japanese legal system in its historical, cultural, political and economic context. By the end of the course, students should have developed an understanding of the relationships between Japanese society and attitude to law, legal institutions and substantive law.

Japanese law provides a superb opportunity to examine the rule of law in affecting social change. By the end of the course, students should have developed an understanding of the possibilities and limitations of using law as a tool of social engineering.

The course will introduce students to the study of comparative law by looking at issues such as the classification of legal systems into families of law and the reception of foreign law. By the end of the course, students should have developed an informed view on the classification of Japanese law and should be able to discuss the possibilities and limitations in transplanting law from one country to another.

Students will learn to analyse and evaluate legal institutions and substantive laws of a foreign legal system and to compare them in a meaningful way with similar laws and institutions in the Australian legal system. They will develop skills to critically assess whether, and if so what, Australia can learn from Japan in a legal context. Students will be introduced to the background knowledge necessary to advise on business transactions with Japanese companies, foreign investment in Japan and its barriers and the Japanese system of dispute resolution.

Topics include:

Pre-modern law and traditions. Japanese society: the reception of Western law and legal scholarship from 1868-1945; Occupation reforms after World War II; sources of law: the legal profession; the judiciary and court organisation; the dispute resolution process; the process of law-making in Japan (the legislature, administrative guidance, the courts: judicial reasoning and judicial review); the criminal justice system; overview of contract law (contract formation, common clauses, attitude to contract); overview of company law.

Other topics may be chosen according to student interest and/or availability of guest lecturers.

Legal Institutions in Post-Mao China

Staff Contact: School Office
C3 SS HPW4

An introduction to the institutions of public and private law in the People's Republic of China in the context of their cultural history, political economy and ideology as well as their social and cultural dimensions. The role of law in post-Mao China will be exemplified by reference to civil, economic and criminal law as well as legal process. Topics include: codification and the reception of western legal ideas; overlapping structures of the Chinese Communist Party and the state; sources of law and policy; legal professions; system of ownership and property; obligations and economic contracts; criminal law and process; mediation; the bifurcation of domestic law and law for foreign trade and investment.

LAWS8470
Law and Politics in Post-Mao China
Staff Contact: School Office
C3 SS HPW4
An advanced study of the relationship between China's political and legal systems with particular emphasis on public law, criminal law and punishment as well as political dimensions of economic law and economic reform in the Post-Mao socialist state. The political dimensions of China's contemporary legal system will be examined by reference to some of the following examples:
The concept and legal recognition of human rights, especially of ethnic minorities, including freedoms of speech and assembly, the role of the Chinese Communist Party in lawmaking and law enforcement; the scope of public law and the political role of the legal professions and the judiciary; judicial independence; theories of punishment; preventative; administrative detention; prisons and labour camps; corruption and administrative remedies; land and agricultural reform; state enterprises and bankruptcy law; law and politics in international trade and investment transactions.

Asian Business Law
Staff Contact: Dr Gail Pearson/Ms Liane Degville
C3 SS HPW4
This course is intended as an introduction to the legal systems and business laws of China, Indonesia, Japan, Korea, Malaysia and Thailand.
The course is divided into five sections including: legal system and foreign investment law, business associations law, contract law, finance and securities law, and environment and dispute resolution law. The laws will be overviewed for each country and where appropriate comparisons made with Australian law. The laws will also be examined with reference to the particular social context and economic stage of development of each country, including the most recent changes in those laws.

Public International Law
Staff Contact: Ms Rosemary Rayfuse
C3 SS HPW4
Principles of public international law. The nature and sources of international law, the relationship between international law and domestic law, international agreements, statehood and title to territory, territorial and maritime jurisdiction, recognition of states and governments, immunities, state responsibility, the use of force, and peaceful settlement of international disputes.

LAWS8570
International Humanitarian Law
Staff Contact: Ms Rosemary Rayfuse
C3 SS HPW4
The interrelationship and operation of international human rights law and the law of armed conflicts and the international law relating to the protection of refugees. In these rapidly evolving areas of international law and practice, a rare opportunity is provided to study law in the making.
Laws relating to Armed Conflicts; the four 1949 Geneva Conventions and their historical antecedents; the role of the Red Cross; the protecting powers system; extension of humanitarian law to guerilla warfare; 1977 Protocols additional to the Geneva Conventions; the laws of The Hague; problems of enforcement of humanitarian law; war crimes; humanitarian intervention; the role of the UN (relationship to military law in Australia). The Law Relating to Refugees: the history of refugee law; problems of definition and eligibility status; admission and asylum; expulsion and non-refoulement; the role of the UNHCR; rescue of refugees at sea; principles of international solidarity and burden-sharing and the mass movements of people; comparative approaches of ASEAN countries; the OAU and Europe; Australian immigration law.

LAWS8610
Conflict of Laws
Staff Contact: School Office
C3 SS HPW4
The Conflict of Laws or Private International Law is a species of private law which deals with problems involving a foreign or an interstate element. The introduction of that foreign or interstate element necessitates an examination by a New South Wales court of three main issues:
1. Whether or not the court has jurisdiction to deal with the problem, and even if it does, whether or not it will assume jurisdiction.
2. If it has assumed jurisdiction the court must then ask itself what is the most appropriate law to apply to the problem before it.
3. Or, the court may have to decide whether or not to recognize and enforce a judgment of a foreign court or the court of another state. Those problems which involve interstate elements may be affected by provisions of the Commonwealth Constitution or by some federal legislation. Failing that, the solution to these interstate problems may call for an approach that is different to the solution of international problems simply on the basis that we are dealing with States of the same Commonwealth.
For the purposes of this subject the solutions that courts and legislatures have offered to such problems are examined in a few selected areas such as family law, contracts, torts and property. Wherever possible, emphasis is placed on the development of more appropriate solutions to these problems.

Rules for the Award of Degrees

Rules Applicable to Candidates for the Degrees of Bachelor of Laws and Bachelor of Jurisprudence

1. (1) The Bachelor of Laws degree may be conferred on the completion of any of the following courses:
   (a) a combined course leading to the award of the degrees of Bachelor of Jurisprudence and Bachelor of Laws;
   (b) a combined course leading to the award of the degrees of Bachelor of Commerce and Bachelor of Laws;
   (c) a combined course leading to the award of the degrees of Bachelor of Economics and Bachelor of Laws;
   (d) a combined course leading to the award of the degrees of Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Laws;
   (e) a combined course leading to the award of the degrees of Bachelor of Arts (Asian Studies) and Bachelor of Laws;
   (f) a combined course leading to the award of the degrees of Bachelor of Science and Bachelor of Laws;
   (g) a combined course leading to the award of the degrees of Bachelor of Social Work and Bachelor of Laws;
   (h) a combined course leading to the award of the degrees of Bachelor of Social Science and Bachelor of Laws;
   (i) a combined course leading to the award of the degrees of Bachelor of Engineering (Civil) and Bachelor of Laws.
   (j) a course leading to the award of the degree of Bachelor of Laws.

   (2) The courses set out in paragraphs (a), (b), (c), (d), (e), (f) (g), (h) and (i) of subrule (1) hereof are referred to in these rules as 'combined courses', and shall be courses of full-time study of not less than five years' duration.

   (3) The course leading to the award of the degree of Bachelor of Laws (otherwise than as part of a combined course) shall be either:
   (a) a course of part-time and/or external study which (unless otherwise approved by the Faculty for special reasons) shall be of not less than six years' duration; or
   (b) a course of full-time study of not less than three years' duration, but no student shall be eligible to enrol in such course unless he or she is a graduate or graduand of any Faculty of the University or another university approved by the Faculty, or has other qualifications or experience deemed acceptable by the Faculty.

2. No person shall be permitted to enrol in any subject in the Faculty of Law at the same time as he or she is enrolled for any other degree or diploma in the University or elsewhere, except as may be necessary to complete the requirements of a combined course, or with the approval of the Faculty.

3. Where, in these Rules, reference is made to the requirement that a candidate shall complete a subject, the requirement shall be construed as meaning that the candidate shall:
   (1) attend such lectures, seminars, tutorials or other classes, and such court sessions, offices or institutions as may be prescribed in that subject, and maintain a satisfactory standard of preparation for and participation in such classes and activities;
   (2) perform satisfactorily in such exercises, essays, theses and other work (whether written, oral or practical) as may be prescribed in that subject and undertake any prescribed reading related to that subject; and
   (3) attain a satisfactory standard in the examination or examinations, and such other means of assessment of a candidate's results in that subject as the Faculty may prescribe.

4. The Faculty of Law shall specify a number of credit points in respect of each Law subject for which credit is given in the award of the degree of Bachelor of Jurisprudence or the degree of Bachelor of Laws (whether taken separately or as part of a combined course). On completion of the subject, a candidate shall be credited with the specified number of points.

5. (1) In the case of the Bachelor of Laws degree course credit shall be given for the subjects set out in the following table, each of which shall, unless otherwise determined by the Faculty, carry the number of credit points (if any) specified.

In the case of the combined course leading to the award of the degrees of Bachelor of Jurisprudence and Bachelor of Laws, the requirement for the award of the Bachelor of Jurisprudence degree shall be that, in addition to completing all requirements of the Bachelor of Laws degree course (including Law subjects totalling not less than 93 credit points), the candidate has completed subjects in another Faculty or Faculties comprising (unless specially approved by the Faculty) a major sequence of three years' study plus one first year subject. Unless he or she obtains special permission from the relevant Head of School, a student shall be bound by any requirements as to subject prerequisites normally applicable to a subject in another Faculty.

A candidate shall obtain the approval of the Faculty of Law to his or her selection of subjects in other Faculties, and to the order in which he or she studies them. In approving such subjects, the Faculty shall have regard to the contribution the study of such subjects may reasonably be expected to make to the development of his or her capacity as a lawyer and understanding of the law.

10. The requirement for the award of the Bachelor of Jurisprudence degree shall be that the candidate has completed a course of full-time study of not less than three years' duration consisting of:

(1) Law subjects totalling not less than 45 credit points and including LAWS1120 Legal System Torts, LAWS7410 Legal Research and Writing 1, LAWS1610 Criminal Law, LAWS2160 Administrative Law, LAWS1410 Contracts, LAWS2140 Public Law, LAWS7420 Legal Research and Writing 2, LAWS7430 Research Component and one of either LAWS8320 Legal Theory or LAWS8820 Law and Social Theory;

(2) Subjects in another Faculty or Faculties comprising, unless otherwise approved by the Faculty, a major sequence of three years' study plus one first year subject.

A candidate shall obtain the approval of the Faculty of Law to his or her selection of subjects, and to the order in which he or she studies them. In approving such subjects, the Faculty shall have regard to the object of providing an integrated program of legal and non-legal studies.

11. A student shall not be enrolled as a part-time student unless he or she satisfies the Faculty that his or her special circumstances preclude full-time study, and that his or her previous experience and/or study make it appropriate to admit him or her to part-time study for the award of the degree of Bachelor of Laws as a separate degree.

12. In these Rules, unless the contrary is indicated, 'the Faculty' means the Faculty of Law.
The University provides facilities for approved students to engage in advanced studies and research in Law leading to the award of higher degrees.

The degree of Doctor of Philosophy is available in the Faculty of Law (Course 1730); this requires the completion of a program of research over a period of at least three years' full-time study and the preparation of a thesis.

Research may also be undertaken by approved students for the degree of Master of Laws (Course 2440). An LLM degree by coursework (Course 9200) commenced in 1969.

The conditions for the award of the PhD degree, the LLM degree by research, and the LLM degree by coursework, and full details of graduate scholarships available are set out later in this book in the section Conditions for the Award of Higher Degrees.

Course Outlines

Master of Laws Degree By Coursework

9200
Master of Laws

LLM

The Master of Laws by formal coursework offers graduates an opportunity to study in an organised fashion areas of specialty and greater difficulty than could be handled in a Bachelor of Laws course, and some which call for advanced interdisciplinary perspectives.

Subjects offered in the LLM by coursework program combine a degree of sophistication or technical difficulty in terms of legal content with a substantial consideration of relevant interdisciplinary aspects of the subject matter and a focus on policy. Each subject contains a significant research component.

The LLM by coursework may be taken full-time in one year or part-time in a minimum of two years. Students shall undertake and satisfactorily complete eight session-long (single semester) subjects or the equivalent. A total of 24 credit points is required for the award of the degree. All subjects will not necessarily be available in any one year. LLM subjects will normally be taught in the evening. Most subjects will be taught in relatively small discussion classes meeting for two hours once a week.

A student may apply to the Associate Dean (Postgraduate and Research) to complete a research thesis of about 25,000 words in place of one year-long subject, or one or two research theses of about 12,500 words each in place of one or two session-long subjects.

A student may apply to the Associate Dean (Postgraduate and Research) for permission to take, as appropriate to the students overall program, up to three single-semester subjects (or the equivalent in year-long subjects) offered at postgraduate level by another University, and four single-semester LLB subjects offered by the Faculty (or the equivalent in year-long subjects)—provided that no student may be permitted to take in all more than four single-semester subjects of either type (or their equivalent in year-long subjects). A student taking an LLB subject shall be assessed in a manner and at a level appropriate to an LLM subject.

Graduate Enrolment Procedures

All students enrolling in graduate courses should obtain a copy of the free leaflet Re-Enrolling for Postgraduate Students available from School Offices and the Admissions Office. This leaflet provides detailed information on enrolment procedures and fees, enrolment timetables by Faculty and course, enrolment in miscellaneous subjects, locations and hours of Cashiers and late enrolments.
The following electives are available for credit towards the Master of Laws degree by Coursework.

Subject Descriptions

Descriptions of all subjects are presented in alphanumeric order within organizational units. For academic advice regarding a particular subject consult with the contact for the subject as listed. A guide to abbreviations and prefixes is included in the chapter 'Handbook Guide', appearing earlier in this book.

LAWS1059

Issues in Evidence

Staff Contact: Dr Kathryn Cronin / Dr Jill Hunter

C3 SS HPW2

Primarily Issues in Evidence concentrates on issues arising in criminal trials. Many of these issues will be pertinent also to civil trials. The course is an issues-based one and as such, a portion of the content fluctuates according to the topicality of different issues. The course begins with an examination of the historical development of the adversarial system and the concept of rational dispute resolution. A core section of the course involves an examination of the jury, powers of the trial judge, the use of judicial direction in jury trials and an analysis of witness credibility. Additional topics may include law reform initiatives, prosecutorial disclosure, advocacy ethics, appeals, confessions, identification evidence and the rule against hearsay. The course encourages an interdisciplinary approach to trial issues (for example, drawing on history, political science, psychology and sociology).

LAWS1069

Law of Damages

Staff Contact: Staff Office

C3 SS HPW2

An advanced analysis of theoretical and practical issues in the law of damages. The subject builds on an assumed knowledge of the general rules of damages in two ways: 1 Theoretically, by an examination of the rules in the light of contemporary historical and jurisprudential analysis. Of particular relevance will be economic analysis and comparative law. 2 Practically, by an examination of the rules in a procedural context.
The subject will focus on current issues and problems but three constant themes will run through the subject: 1. Doctrinal issues (e.g. causation, remoteness); 2. Heads of damages (e.g. loss of money, injury to reputation); 3. Procedural considerations.

LAW1559 Feminist Legal Theory and Practice

Staff Contact: A/Prof Regina Graycar

C3 SS HPW2

This course scrutinises key debates in feminist jurisprudence and applies them to a number of important issues of practice. Theoretical issues considered include the public/private distinction, the meaning of inequality for women and questions of epistemology and methodology. These themes will then be applied to concrete issues, using a cross-doctrinal framework of legal analysis. Topics examined may include the construction of women’s connection to others in legal discourses (e.g. through reproductive issues), and a conceptual framework for dealing with injuries to women, along a continuum of harms from medical injuries to media vilification. A central focus will be on practical questions of strategy, looking at the possibilities for a feminist legal practice. This will include examination of gender-neutrality; alternative dispute resolution, the creation of new legal claims designed from the standpoint of women and an examination of the “theorics of practice”.

LAW1609 Families: Property Adjustment and Financial Transactions

Staff Contact: Dr Owen Jessep

C3 SS HPW2

This subject provides a critical examination of a set of linked areas of law associated with family property adjustment and financial transactions. Although there may be some variations from year to year, topics will normally comprise: 1. Law, procedure and practice relating to property adjustment under the Family Law Act 1975 (C’wealth) and under the De Facto Relationships Act 1984 (NSW); 2. The law of maintenance agreements (Family Law Act) and separation and cohabitation agreements (De Facto Relationships Act); 3. Family law aspects of social security; 4. Family law aspects of bankruptcy; 5. Family law aspects of family provision (TFM); 6. Family law aspects of taxation.

The treatment will emphasise the interaction of different areas of law, and the significance of this interaction both for practice and for an understanding of the policies involved. Experienced family law practitioners may participate in some classes.

There are no prerequisites, but it is highly desirable that students should have either studied or practised in family law.

LAW1709 Sentencing: Law, Policy and Practice

Staff Contact: A/Prof George Zdenkowski

C3 SS HPW2

An examination of the law, practice and policy relating to the sentencing process with reference to the decision to prosecute; the sentencing hearing; available sanctions; choice of sanction rules and the administration of punishment. Topics may include: Theories of punishment; outline of the legal framework for sentencing in Australia. Information systems, public opinion, media treatment. The sentencing process; the role of discretion, impact of the prosecution process on sentencing outcomes, pre-trial procedures, victims and the criminal justice system, the approach of the courts to sentencing goals, appeals against sentence. Sentencing options; capital punishment and corporal punishment, imprisonment, fines and other unsupervised noncustodial options, supervised non-custodial options, ancillary orders, experimental options, mandatory penalties. Release from custody: the development of parole, models of parole, release on licence, other forms of release from custody, remissions. Enforcement of sentencing options. Administration of the sentence. Special categories of offenders; Aboriginal offenders, sentencing options for corporate offenders, female offenders, mentally disordered offenders, young offenders, habitual offenders, drug offenders; reform. Topics may vary from year to year.

LAW1719 Community Corrections

Staff Contact: A/Prof David Brown

C3 SS HPW2

At any one time in Australia three forms of community corrections probation, parole and community service orders involve three times as many people as those in prison. The percentage of people under some form of community supervision is steadily increasing. A number of legal and social issues and implications arise from these tendencies and insufficient attention has been devoted to them. In addition there are even newer developments such as home detention based on forms of electronic monitoring, the privatisation of penal practices, the development of a range of specialist ‘diversionary’ schemes both pre and post trial. This subject will examine these important issues.

Topics include: the development of community corrections, community corrections as social control. Analysis of the legal foundation and operation of a range of specialist diversionary schemes. An examination of the agencies gathering information used in determining eligibility for such schemes. Probation, community service orders, parole, parole supervision. Release on licence provisions. The role of volunteers. Halfway houses and hostels, conditions of parole, release on licence provisions. The role of volunteers. Halfway houses and hostels, conditions of residence, forms of supervision, legal and ethical issues, evaluation. The legal, social and ethical issues surrounding the development of home detention schemes and forms of electronic monitoring of people on conditional release. The development in the U.S.A. of extensive privatisation of corrective functions and personnel, Australian tendencies. Examination of reform directions.

LAW1729 Punishment in Contemporary Society

Staff Contact: Mr Dirk Meure

C3 SS HPW2

This course takes a critical look at current debate around issues of punishment, its practices and procedures. It aims to provide a guide to understanding the strategic importance of punishment today. Topics include: problems of method; sociological visions of punishment and control; Durkheim and the neo Durkheimians; punishment and exchange; punishment and normalisation; punitive discourse; truth and the sentence; contemporary panoptics; and, reforming the sentence.
LAWS1759
Crime Prevention Policy
Staff Contact: A/Prof David Brown
C3 SS HPW2

Crime prevention policy has traditionally been regarded as synonymous with the operations of the criminal justice system. Clearly the operations of the major criminal justice agencies - the police, courts and prisons are an important part of the response to crime. However, research shows that these agencies have a very limited effect on the incidence of crime. This is hardly surprising when we consider that the causes of criminal offending lie in economic, social and cultural factors which by and large lie outside the criminal justice system. It is therefore imperative to develop approaches to crime prevention which focus on a broad range of areas and social agencies outside the traditionally defined criminal justice system. The emphasis should be on the attempt to link these various areas and to develop crime prevention policy.

LAWS1769
The 'New' Prosecutors
Staff Contact: Dr Sandra Egger
C3 SS HPW2

There have been dramatic changes in the prosecutorial arena in recent years. To the traditional (police) prosecuting agencies have been added federal and state DPPs, the NCA, the ICAC, specialist Task Forces, specialist prosecution units in specific offence areas, numerous Royal Commissions, among others. In addition to the proliferation in prosecution agencies a range of new investigative and prosecutorial techniques and practices have emerged. These in turn have generated a range of legal, social and ethical issues around questions of independence, accountability and control.

Proposed topics include: the emergence of the 'new' prosecutors and key themes in their evaluation; the legal constitution and operation of a number of agencies such as DPPs, NCA and ICAC; an analysis of some investigative and prosecutorial techniques and practices, such as witness immunities, phone tapping, electronic surveillance, assets forfeiture etc.

LAWS1779
Juvenile Justice
Staff Contact: Ms Jennifer Bargen
C3 SS HPW2

Juvenile delinquency has emerged in recent years as an important political issue. The various agencies and practices of the criminal justice system as they apply to juveniles are sufficiently distinctive to warrant special examination. Specific policing schemes are in operation such as juvenile cautioning. There are specific legal requirements in relation to police interrogation of juveniles. The Children's Court although broadly assimilated into the Local Court system has various distinctive features. Welfare-based intervention is more extensive. There are specific issues and problems in the juvenile corrections area. An increasing number of lawyers, social and youth workers and policy advisors are working in the juvenile justice area.

Topics include: historical aspects of juvenile delinquency, the 'child-saving' movement, patterns of juvenile offending, policing, children as victims, children as complainants and witnesses, police interrogation practices and cautioning schemes, the Children's Court, juvenile advocacy, juvenile institutions, community correctional programs, specialist youth services, issues and problems in reform.

LAWS1789
Policing
Staff Contact: Dr David Dixon
C3 SS HPW 2

This course focuses on policing as a set of social and legal practices and institutions. It is particularly concerned with the potential role of law in policing, both as a resource and as a regulator. Comparative material is used, drawing out similarities and contrasts between policing in New South Wales and elsewhere. The course's approach is inter-disciplinary, drawing on a wide range of historical, socio-legal and criminological research.

Policing is placed in its social and historical contexts by assessing conflicting interpretations of its history and of police public relations. This leads to an investigation of some developments in modern policing. In particular, the course investigates police uses of law, the relevance of law to policing, and the effectiveness of statutory and other rules in influencing and controlling police decisions and activities. Classes will also discuss police culture, the policing of social divisions, the policing of public order, fictional representations of policing, investigative methods, and developments in community, private and international policing.

LAWS2219
Electronic Communications: Delivery Systems
Staff Contact: Ms Holly Raiche
C3 S1 HPW2

This course looks in depth at communications delivery systems (including both management of the spectrum and telecommunications, but also on the range of developing information services): how they are regulated, and the implications of convergence of technologies to deliver a range of communications services.

Note/s: (a) LAWS2219 will be taught in Session One and LAWS2229 in Session Two. (b) A student taking both these subjects in the same year can opt for a single assessment program covering both subjects.
LAWS2229
Electronic Communications: Content and Control
Staff Contact: Ms Holly Raiche
C3 S2 HPW2
This course examines the process of control over content and ownership of the range of communications services, focussing primarily on broadcasting services under the Broadcasting Services Act, but also examining content and control issues for other information services.

Note/s: (a) LAWS2219 will be taught in Session One and LAWS2229 in Session Two. (b) A student taking both these subjects in the same year can opt for a single assessment program covering both subjects.

LAWS2239
The Media and the Law: Defamation
Staff Contact: Prof Michael Chesterman
C3 S1 HPW2
Advanced treatment of laws imposing restrictions upon publication irrespective of the mode of publication (broadcasting, newspapers, books, etc). This includes discussion of practical aspects, and of basic policy questions, notably the definition of freedom of expression and the balancing of this freedom against opposing considerations such as preservation of individual reputation. Material from constitutional law, comparative law and international law is included, and proposals for reform are discussed.

Topics include: Freedom of expression and the media; defamation, civil and criminal; other forms of protection of business reputation.

Note/s: (a) LAWS2239 will be taught in Session One and LAWS2249 in Session Two. (b) A student taking both these subjects in the same year can opt for a single assessment program covering both subjects.

LAWS2249
The Media and the Law: Prohibited Publications
Staff Contact: Prof Michael Chesterman
C3 S2 HPW2
Advanced treatment of laws imposing restrictions upon publication irrespective of the mode of publication (broadcasting, newspapers, books etc). This includes discussion of practical aspects, and of basic policy questions, notably the definition of freedom of expression and the balancing of this freedom against opposing considerations such as the right to a fair trial, state authority and confidentiality. Material from constitutional law, comparative law and international law is included, and proposals for reform are discussed.

Topics include: Freedom of expression and the media; contempt of court and of parliament; reporting of legal and parliamentary proceedings; privacy; breach of confidence; sedition; obscenity and pornography; blasphemy; vilification on racial grounds.

Note/s: (a) LAWS2239 will be taught in Session One and LAWS2249 in Session Two. (b) A student taking both these subjects in the same year can opt for a single assessment program covering both subjects.

LAWS2409
Comparative Constitutional Law
Staff Contact: Prof George Winterton
C3 S3 HPW2
Prerequisite: LAWS2150 or equivalent
Examines and compares the operation of major institutions and doctrines of constitutional law in Australia, the United States, Canada, the United Kingdom, India and elsewhere. Differences and similarities are noted and assessed. Topics include: review of legislative and executive action; the role of the judiciary; federalism and devolution; national/regional financial relations; relations between legislature and executive; civil liberties; emergency powers; constitutional reform.

LAWS2609
Issues in Human Rights
Staff Contact: Prof Garth Nettheim
C3 S3 HPW2
Prerequisite: LAWS2620 Human Rights Law or equivalent
The subject examines issues of current concern in Human Rights Law. The issues selected will vary from time to time. They will include consideration of the adequacy of International Law standards and processes; regional approaches to human rights protection; the adequacy of Australian law and machinery, with comparative references to other relevant countries; human rights protection at State/Territory level.

LAWS3409
Environmental Law and Policy
Staff Contact: School Office
C6 F HPW2
This subject examines environmental law in Australia in a policy setting. Environmental law is interpreted broadly to refer to all relevant regulatory frameworks, including both statutory and common law ones, as well as relevant international administrative and legal arrangements. The primary focus will be the NSW context, but environmental issues of a global, regional and national nature will also be addressed. The law will be examined in an inter-disciplinary way, referring to economic, sociological, historical and philosophical analysis, with reference being also made to comparative environmental law. Particular topics of a conceptual kind include: how environmental problems are defined and what form they take; competing values (e.g. anthropocentric versus ecocentric perspectives) and how such values are articulated (through, e.g., public participation) in order to develop public policy responses to environmental problems; and theoretical aspects of policy development and evaluation, referring to cost-benefit analysis and risk assessment, spillover effects, the nature of public goods, and issues of justice in the distribution of environmental costs and benefits. Consideration of legal techniques for giving effect to environmental policies will cover such matters as: property law, including private and common property rights, conservation covenants, heritage agreements; tort law; forward planning and the planmaking process; project control; environmental impact assessment; pollution control; self-regulatory measures; and issues of enforcement. Alternatives to legal regulation for the achievement of environmental policy will also be considered.
LAWS4209
Issues in Intellectual Property
Staff Contact: A/Prof Jill McKeough
C3 SS HPW2
Prerequisite: Undergraduate study in Intellectual Property or LAWS4209 Issues in Intellectual Property or equivalent
Notes: Not offered 1995
The subject follows on from undergraduate studies of intellectual property and pursues in depth issues which assume an understanding of the bases of protection for ideas.
Topics include: Performers’ rights, moral rights, the role of copyright in a technological society, administrative aspects of copyright, the operation of compulsory licensing schemes, patenting of biologically engineered ‘inventions’, protection of computer technology, counterfeiting, emerging trends in theories of the jurisdictional basis of protection of confidence.

LAWS4219
Technology Transfer: International Intellectual Property Transactions
Staff Contact: School Office
C3 SS HPW2
Prerequisite: Undergraduate study in Intellectual Property or LAWS4209 Issues in Intellectual Property or equivalent
This subject examines the legal framework within which technologies are transferred between countries, emphasising the technology/development debate. There will be a focus on technology transfer between countries of the Asia-Pacific region (including China, Japan, Australia and the USA), and students will have the opportunity to concentrate on the technology transfer problems of one country in the region. Topics include: the role of technology transfer in economic development; the role of intellectual property in technology transfer; the patent system and international patent documentation; copyright, encouragement of indigenous creativity, and the free flow of information; trademarks and competition in developing countries; the functions and effects of international organisations (including WIPO, GATT and UNCTAD) and intellectual property conventions (e.g. renegotiation of the Paris Convention); the UNCTAD Draft Code for the International Transfer of Technology; export of dangerous technologies; biotechnology and the Third World; domestic controls on technology exports; the recognition and enforcement of foreign intellectual property under national laws; and comparisons with European regional developments (e.g. European Patent Office, EC directives). The drafting of international licence agreements is not covered in this course.

LAWS4309
Corporate Control Transactions
Staff Contact: A/Prof Paul Redmond
C3 SS HPW2
Prerequisite: LAWS4019 Business Associations 1 or equivalent
The subject explores the concept of corporate control through a study of the legal doctrines defining control and affecting its exercise, and of the regulation of transactions touching its acquisition and transfer. An examination of Chapter 6 of the Corporations Law is a central element of this study. Other topics to be studied will be drawn from the following (although further topics may be added to reflect current developments): the allocation of control through consensual devices (shareholder agreements, voting trusts etc.); the exercise of control through shareholder meetings; disclosure of substantial shareholdings and beneficial ownership generally; defensive measures in contests for corporate control; structural changes arising from corporate mergers, reconstructions and buy-outs; control within unincorporated investment structures (with particular reference to unit trusts).

LAWS4319
Securities Regulation
Staff Contact: A/Prof Paul Redmond
C3 SS HPW2
Prerequisite: LAWS4010 Business Associations 1 or equivalent
The subject examines the structure and regulation of secondary markets for corporate securities and for related financial interests such as prescribed interests and futures contracts. Anticipated topics for study include the theory and development of securities markets; internationalisation of securities markets and its consequences; co-regulatory structure for Australian securities markets including the powers of the Australian Securities Commission and the Australian Stock Exchange over securities markets and related financial interests; corporate disclosure obligations; controls upon market manipulation and insider trading; securities market licensing; conduct of securities business; regulation of the futures industry.

LAWS4329
Commercial Finance
Staff Contact: Mr Ian Cameron
C6 F HPW2
Prerequisites: LAWS4010 Business Associations 1 and LAWS4380 Commercial Law B or equivalents
The subject examines law and practice concerning the provision of finance for commercial enterprise. The subject deals with central topics in commercial and corporate finance law by reference to the typical forms and processes of financing transactions. The subject adverts, where appropriate, to other legal doctrines (e.g. revenue law) and to extralegal considerations affecting financing decisions and the documentation in which they are expressed. Topics to be studied will be drawn from the following (although other topics may be added to reflect current developments): the range of commercial financing instruments and considerations affecting the choice between them; banking regulation, law and practice as it affects commercial financing; the law regulating security interests including the nature and priority of company charges and debenture trust deeds; other aspects of debt financing including loan syndication, subordination, negative pledges and use of international debt markets; equity financing including preference capital, dividend and stapled stock arrangements, and repurchase and financial assistance problems; structural and financial considerations affecting noncorporate business forms such as joint ventures and trusts; relevant aspects of remedies in insolvent administration including receivership, liquidation schemes and official management.
Derivatives Regulation
Staff Contact: A/Prof Paul Redmond
C3 SS HPW2
Pre requisite: LAWS4010 Business Associations 1 or equivalent

Derivative financial products ("derivatives") are a class of financial contract whose value depends upon the values of one or more underlying assets or indices of asset values. Derivatives have become an integral and necessary part of modern financial risk management. This subject considers the regulatory structure within which derivatives have developed, together with the issues being addressed by those designing the products and by regulators. Both exchange traded derivatives (e.g., futures contracts and equity options) and the counter derivatives (e.g., forex, forward contracts and swaps) are examined.

LAWS4409
Capital Gains Tax
Staff Contact: A/Prof Philip Burgess
C3 SS HPW2
Pre requisite: LAWS4440 or equivalent

LAWS4419
International Taxation
Staff Contact: A/Prof Philip Burgess
C3 SS HPW2
Pre requisite: LAWS4440 or equivalent

With the closing of many domestic tax loopholes, the deregulation and meshing of the Australia economy with the world economy, international tax has moved out of the esoteric domain and become part of day to day practice. Fundamental changes were introduced by the Foreign Tax Credit System, the 'controlled' Foreign Corporation measures and the foreign investment fund rules. The Tax Office is in the process of strengthening its complex audit and information gathering capacity to challenge many arrangements. These changes must be linked to existing law and the double tax treaties.

companies after imputation. Passive income; antiavoidance provisions; jurisdictional limits, enforcement limits. shifting residence or source, information reporting, double dipping schemes, tax haven measures. Evaluation of Tax Office audit strategies.

LAWS4429
Tax Procedure
Staff Contact: A/Prof Philip Burgess
C3 SS HPW2
Pre requisite: LAWS4440 Elements of Income Tax Law or its equivalent

This subject examines the law governing the tax collection process and the practices which have evolved in the course of that process. Topics include: 1 Tax rule-making; balance between statutes, regulations and rulings. Drafting of tax legislation and modes of consultation. The legislative process (with comparative insights). The role of discretion in tax legislation. 2 Internal organisation of the tax office. Self assessment and its monitoring. Complex audit, business audit, desk audit. Compliance strategies. 3 Information gathering powers of the tax administration and their limitations, including professional privilege and the privilege against self-incrimination. Powers of taxpayers to obtain information on the basis of assessments. 4 Review mechanisms for tax office decisions: the Administrative Appeals Tribunal and the Courts. Procedural rules. Presenting a tax case (Documents, application of rules of evidence, use of experts). 5 Negotiation. 6 Collection and recovery of tax. 7 Tax as an example of mass decision-making in the public sector.

LAWS4609
Developing Computer Applications to Law A: Database, hypertext and communications technologies
Staff Contact: A/Prof Graham Greenleaf
C3 SS HPW2

The theory and practice of developing computer applications for use in the law, with an emphasising the use of database, text retrieval and hypertext techniques. The special requirements of legal materials are emphasised. Examples of the practical uses of each technology are demonstrated and considered critically, including litigation support systems, sentencing systems, land information systems and case and statute retrieval systems. Topics include: principles of free-text retrieval; deficiencies of existing retrieval techniques; 'interventionist' interfaces; principles of hypertext; 'conceptual' retrieval systems; measuring the performance of retrieval systems; neural networks' in information retrieval; electronic filing of documents and document exchange; hypertext and text retrieval over the internet. Each student will design and implement a computer application in an area of law of the student's choice. The use of appropriate hypertext and text retrieval programs is taught during the course for this purpose. Familiarity with the use of a microcomputer and a word processing program is a prerequisite, but a knowledge of programming is not required. Familiarity with computerised legal research is desirable. All classes take place in the Faculty Microcomputer Lab and enrolment is therefore limited.
LAWS4619
Developing Computer Applications to Law B: Knowledge-based technologies
Staff Contact: A/Prof Graham Greenleaf
C3 SS HPW2

The theory and practice of developing computer applications for use in the law, emphasising the use of 'knowledge-based' technologies such as expert systems (systems that give legal 'advice') and automated legal document generators. Systems in use in public administration and private practice will be demonstrated and discussed critically. Topics include: the nature of legal knowledge and reasoning and its capacity for computerised representation; relationship between formal logics, legal reasoning and expert systems; rule-based expert systems; non-deductive expert systems; special problems of statute-based and case-law representation and reasoning; principles of automated document generators; integrated legal information systems; implications for the delivery of legal services and the rule of law. Each student will design and implement a computer application in an area of law of the student's choice. The use of appropriate expert systems and document generation programs (or 'shells') is taught during the course for this purpose. Familiarity with the use of a microcomputer and a word processing program is a prerequisite, but a knowledge of programming is not required. Legal Computer Applications Development (A) is not a prerequisite for this course, but students who have not completed that course should seek advice before enrolling.

LAWS4659
Data Surveillance and Information Privacy Law
Staff Contact: A/Prof Graham Greenleaf
C3 SS HPW2

This subject examines the implications of data surveillance (the techniques of social control through the use of information technology) in both public and private administration, and information privacy (or 'data protection') law as a response. Topics include: uses and effectiveness of data surveillance in tax and social security administration, prevention of credit and insurance fraud, direct marketing and criminal investigation; documentary identification law and practice (population registers, credit cards, licences etc); 'data surveillance law' as a new method of public administration; the effectiveness of general law (eg breach of confidence) and such legislation as the Privacy Act 1988 (Cth) and the Data Matching Program (Assistance and Tax) Act 1990; privacy aspects of freedom of information laws, official secrets laws, credit reporting legislation and 'spent convictions' legislation; international standards and regulation of 'trans-border data flows', particularly in light of the European Commission's Draft Directive on data protection. Each student will examine in depth the legality, use and effectiveness of data surveillance techniques, and the effects of data protection law, on one area of public administration or commercial practice.

LAWS6579
Research Thesis: One-session elective
Staff Contact: Mr Ian Cameron
C3 S2

A Research Thesis project shall be approved by the School of Law if:
1. a clearly defined project is presented; the thesis topic must be approved at the outset but may be modified at a later stage. 2. the student has an academic background in legal study sufficient to handle the subject matter of the thesis in an adequate manner. 3. adequate supervision is available; supervision may be conjoint but at least one supervisor must be a full-time member of academic staff.

The School of Law may approve a Research Thesis but in doing so may limit its approval to a one-session elective. A student who has received approval for a one-session elective may be given subsequent approval to have his or her project transferred to a two-session elective (LAWS6559). Similarly a student who has received approval for a two-session elective (LAWS6559) may be given retrospective approval for transfer to a one-session elective.

Thesis
The thesis must be typed on A4 bond paper and two copies must be prepared in a cover (spring back folder or bound). References may appear at the foot of each page or at the end of each chapter. As a general rule the thesis shall be a maximum of 12,500 words for a one-session project or 25,000 words for a two-session project.

Examination
Two examiners, one of whom may be the supervisor, shall be appointed for each thesis by the School of Law. The final date for submission of the thesis shall be the last day of session for which the candidate is registered for the thesis or such other date as the examiners may agree.

Examiners may require a candidate to attend an oral examination on the subject matter of the thesis; examiners may require a thesis to be re-submitted under such conditions as the examiners may determine.

LAWS6829
Issues in Australian Social Security Law and Policy
Staff Contact: A/Prof Regina Graycar
C3 SS HPW2

This course examines the broad structure of the social security system in Australia and focuses in particular on its intersection with other areas of law. After outlining the form of Australian social security law and the range of benefits, pensions and allowances available under the Social Security Act 1991 (Cth), the course will focus on several key areas: unemployment, payments for families (including sole parent pension, family payments and the Child Support Scheme), and the social security implications of compensation for injuries (both common law and statute). In addition, the course will examine the structures for reviewing decisions made under the Social Security Act.

LAWS6919
Civil Liberties and the Law
Staff Contact: Ms Melinda Jones
C3 SS HPW2

It is generally thought that Australia is a democracy, a free Western society. Yet all too often the content of freedom and the idea of democracy are taken for granted. This course examines the requirements of freedom and democracy, and sets about assessing the extent to which Australian law is the guardian of civil liberties or its detractor. The concern of this course is with the treatment of Australian minorities: Aborigines, Communists, Seventh Day Adventists, women: with issues arising from the multicultural nature of Australian society; and with the exercise of personal freedom independent of constraints imposed by the state. Topics covered will include the constitutional protection of liberty; common law rights in theory and practice; voting rights and political freedom; freedom of the individual such as privacy, and public morality; and equality and economic rights.

LAWS6929
Aboriginal Legal Issues
Staff Contact: Prof Garth Nettheim
C3 SS HPW2
Prerequisite: LAWS6920 or equivalent demonstration of a comparable level of knowledge and/or experience.

The subject examines issues of current concern and of legal/political complexity. The issues selected will vary from time to time but will include topics in relation to constitutional status, land entitlements, and economic, social and cultural issues. Comparative reference will be made, where appropriate, to experience in New Zealand, Canada and the USA. International Law will also be considered.

LAWS8009
Legal Reasoning
Staff Contact: Dr Arthur Glass
C3 SS HPW2

Legal reasoning and legal interpretation are activities central to legal practice. This subject examines such matters as the extent to which legal reasoning and legal interpretation can be explained as rational procedures and what it means here to justify an argument or an interpretation. These questions will be approached by way of a discussion of contemporary writings in philosophy of law and by a consideration of other related disciplines (for example hermeneutics and rhetoric). Among the theorists discussed will be R. Dworkin, S. Fish, R. Alexy, Ch. Perelman and H.G. Gadamer.

LAWS8019
Law, Language and Power
Staff Contact: Mr Dirk Meure
C3 SS HPW2

An examination of the relationship between law, language and power as considered from a number of theoretical approaches.

Topics include: 1 Introduction to discourse theory; 2 The order of discourse, the politics of truth, governmentality, (Foucault); 3 Law and literature; 4 legal discourse and languages of law (Goodrich); 5 feminist critiques of legal discourse (Irigaray, Eisenstein); 6 law and theories of interpretation.

LAWS8029
Law and the Social Sciences A: Law and Economics
Staff Contact: School Office
C3 SS HPW2

An examination of the law and its institutions, techniques and purposes through the application of the concepts and methodology of economic theory. The economic approach to law has had a major influence in the USA and is also establishing itself in other countries. Law and legal institutions affect the allocation and distribution of resources. Without presupposition of any particular political or ideological perspective, the theoretical and empirical methods of economics can illuminate the nature of law.

The subject will aim to introduce students to selected economic techniques and concepts and to provide an awareness of the range of legal subject matter susceptible to economic analysis.

LAWS8039
Law and the Social Sciences B: Law and Politics
Staff Contact: School Office
C3 SS HPW2

A thematically focussed investigation of the relationships between law and political power. The course will investigate the major ways in which law and politics interact. The approach will be comparative and will draw upon a range of contemporary and historical case-studies. Three approaches especially will be discussed: (1) Law as an instrument of power; (2) Law as a means of legitimising power; (3) Law as a restraint on power.

LAWS8439
Modern Civil Law Systems: French and Roman
Dutch Law
Staff Contact: Dr Richard Bauman
C3 SS HPW2

The course is designed to convey a basic understanding of Civil Law systems descended from Roman Law. The French and Roman-Dutch systems are used as models. These two systems occupy somewhat different positions on the Civil Law spectrum. French Law is based on a code, whereas Roman-Dutch Law is uncodified and is in that respect similar to Common Law. The course enables useful comparisons to be made between two systems, which exhibit both similarities due to their common origin and differences due to their post-Roman histories. Comparisons with Common Law are also made. The topics discussed include courts and procedures, family law, property, contract and torts. Translations of all necessary foreign language material are provided.

LAWS8459
Pacific Islands Legal Systems
Staff Contact: Dr Owen Jessep
C3 SS HPW2

An introduction to the emerging legal systems of the Pacific Islands states, including issues of constitutional development, the recognition and application of customary law, modern and traditional legal institutions, land tenure regimes, personal law, and the legal recognition of economic activity, such as international trade, foreign investment and national resources projects. In addition to surveying the position of particular states, there will also be consideration of the nature and role of regional organisations, such as the South Pacific Forum and the Forum Fishing Agency.

LAWS8469
Asian Legal Systems
Staff Contact: School Office
C3 SS HPW2

An introduction to the major features of the legal systems of East Asia, especially Japan and the People's Republic. of China. The modernisation of law will be considered against the background of the culture, history and social organisation of those states. Particular issues include the nature and role of the legal profession, processes of dispute resolution (inside and outside of the court systems), notions of contract and property law, and regulation of economic activity. Knowledge of an Asian language is not required—all instructional materials are in English.

LAWS8479
Islamic Law
Staff Contact: Mr Salahuddin Ahmed
C3 SS HPW2

Islamic Law is one of the wellknown legal systems of the world. Australia has important cultural and trade relations with a number of Asian countries where Islamic Law is applicable in many areas of the administration of justice. The subject is taught from a comparative point of view of the common law principles. Topics include: sources of Islamic Law, family law, women's rights, succession, crime and punishment, commercial law, finance and banking law without interest, international law, human rights, comparative study of Islamic law with other legal systems and law reforms.

LAWS8489
International Trade and Investment Law in the People's Republic of China
Staff Contact: Mr Mark Buchanan
C3 SS HPW2

China is forecast to be one of the largest trading nations by the early 21st Century. This course discusses the economic, political and legal environments for trade and investment in China. It examines the origins and effects of China's 'Open Door Policy' and economic and legal reforms implemented since the landmark change of direction in 1978 as China moves to establish and institutionalize a socialist market economy. Topics include: an introduction to the Chinese legal system and constitutional framework; history of trade in China and economic reform; foreign trade and investment law and policies, including contract law, investment vehicles (joint and wholly-owned ventures), technology transfer, intellectual property, company law, banking and finance, foreign exchange controls, securities regulation, labour law, land use, special economic zones, and dispute resolution. Special topics may also be considered including Hong Kong and Macao's approach toward resumption of PRC sovereignty, and 'Taiwan and the 'one country, two systems' policy.

LAWS8509
Advanced issues in International Law
Staff Contact: Ms Rosemary Rayfuse
C3 SS HPW2

This course will study selected currently relevant topics of public international law in more depth than is available/possible in the basic Public International Law course. The focus of the course will vary from year to year depending on current international events. The operation of the rules of international law will be examined and assessed 'in action' in the context of the chosen topic/event. Examples would include in depth analysis of the international legal issues relating to the dissolution of the former Yugoslavia, the conflict in Bosnia-Herzegovina, the Rwandan crisis and so on.

LAWS8519
Peaceful Settlement of International Disputes
Staff Contact: Ms Rosemary Rayfuse
C3 SS HPW2

This course examines the adjudicatory and non-adjudicatory procedures for settling disputes between States. The course will examine the role of negotiation, good offices, mediation and conciliation and the role of the UN in settling international disputes peacefully. It will then examine the system of inter-state arbitration, both ad-hoc and that occurring within the framework of established tribunals such as the Iran-US Claims Tribunal and ICSID. The practice and procedure of the International Court of Justice in both its contentious and its advisory capacity will be examined, as well as settlement mechanisms for resolving international disputes about human rights.

LAWS8529
International Commercial Arbitration
Staff Contact: Ms Rosemary Rayfuse
C3 SS HPW2

Many cases of injury to multinational companies which would formerly have been pursued as a diplomatic claim by the national State of the company are now resolved by arbitration directly between the company and the respondent State. In this sense, international commercial arbitration can be seen as a natural extension of inter-State dispute settlement procedures, of great and growing importance. This course will examine the law and practice relating to the arbitral process and recognition and enforcement of arbitral awards. Reference will be made to the Model Arbitral Rules and the case law emanating from a number of Arbitral Bodies and Tribunals such as the ICC, UNCITRAL, ICSID and to the decisions of ad-hoc arbitral tribunals.

LAWS8539
History and Theory of International Law
Staff Contact: Ms Rosemary Rayfuse
C3 SS HPW2

This course will examine some of the fundamental issues underlying international law, against the background of its history. Attention will be paid both to classical analysis of the nature of international law (positivism and its alternatives) and to some of the recent critiques of international law from perspectives such as critical legal studies, feminist legal theory, international relations theory, etc. Particular topics to be examined will be chosen having regard to the interests of students taking the course.

LAWS8549
International Organizations
Staff Contact: Ms Rosemary Rayfuse
C3 SS HPW2

This course will examine the law of international institutions with particular reference to the United Nations and Specialized Agencies and the law of regional organizations, such as the organizations of the European Union, the Organization of American States and the Organization of African Unity. Common institutional problems will be examined as will the impact of international organization on the doctrine of sovereign equality of States.
LAWS8559
Law of the Sea
Staff Contact: Ms Rosemary Flayfuse
C3 SS HPW2
This course will examine the legal regime which binds States in their international relations concerning maritime matters. The course will examine the major maritime zones recognized in international law, such as the territorial sea, the Contiguous and Exclusive Economic Zones, the high Seas, and the legal regime relating to the Continental Shelf. It will also examine the rules relating to the various uses of the seas, such as fishing, navigation, scientific research, regulation of marine pollution and military uses of the sea. It will examine the way in which disputes over conflicting uses of the seas arise and the manner in which they are handled and will look at the interrelationship between the public international law of the sea and municipal law.

LAWS8569
Legal Regulation of the Use of Force
Staff Contact: Ms Rosemary Rayfuse
C3 SS HPW2
This course will cover the law on the use of force and the law and practice relating to United Nations enforcement action and peace-keeping operations. The course will examine the limitations, both pre- and post-UN Charter, on the unilateral use of force by States. It will then examine the system for collective measures established by the UN Charter and regional organizations, including regional peace-keeping. Finally, it will examine cases of ad-hoc improvisation by the UN in default of an established system of peace-keeping and collective security and the recent UN developments towards a firmly established system.

LAWS9019
Commercial Litigation
Staff Contact: A/Prof Chris Rossiter
C3 SS HPW2
This course examines the basis upon which the enforcement of supposed contractual obligations might be resisted in terms of principle, evidence and the strategy and tactics of litigation. Topics include the rules of common law, equity, statutory obligations; contract law, including validity, enforceability, variation, abandonment, replacement, frustration, misrepresentation, duress and mistake, estoppel, election, waiver, penalties and forfeitures. In addition, implied contracts and implied terms, whether by law, custom or usage will be examined, as well as rectification of contracts, and the consequences of defective performance by a plaintiff.

*Faculty of Science.
†Faculty of Biological and Behavioural Sciences.
Doctor of Philosophy (PhD)

1. The degree of Doctor of Philosophy may be awarded by the Council on the recommendation of the Higher Degree Committee of the appropriate faculty or board (hereinafter referred to as the Committee) to a candidate who has made an original and significant contribution to knowledge.

Qualifications

2. (1) A candidate for the degree shall have been awarded an appropriate degree of Bachelor with Honours from the University of New South Wales or a qualification considered equivalent from another university or tertiary institution at a level acceptable to the Committee.

(2) In exceptional cases an applicant who submits evidence of such other academic and professional qualifications as may be approved by the Committee may be permitted to enrol for the degree.

(3) If the Committee is not satisfied with the qualifications submitted by an applicant the Committee may require the applicant to undergo such assessment or carry out such work as the Committee may prescribe, before permitting enrolment as a candidate for the degree.

Enrolment

3. (1) An application to enrol as a candidate for the degree shall be lodged with the Registrar at least one month prior to the date at which enrolment is to begin.

(2) In every case before making the offer of a place the Committee shall be satisfied that initial agreement has been reached between the School and the applicant on the topic area, supervision arrangements, provision of adequate facilities and any coursework to be prescribed and that these are in accordance with the provisions of the guidelines for promoting postgraduate study within the University.

(3) The candidate shall be enrolled either as a full-time or a part-time student.

(4) A full-time candidate will present the thesis for examination no earlier than three years and no later than five years from the date of enrolment and a part-time candidate will present the thesis for examination no earlier than four years and no later than six years from the date of enrolment, except with the approval of the Committee.

(5) The candidate may undertake the research as an internal student i.e. at a campus, teaching hospital, or other research facility with which the University is associated, or as an external student not in attendance at the University except for periods as may be prescribed by the Committee.

(6) An internal candidate will normally carry out the research on a campus or at a teaching or research facility of the University except that the Committee may permit a candidate to spend a period in the field, within another institution or elsewhere away from the University provided that the work can be supervised in a manner satisfactory to the Committee. In such instances the Committee shall be satisfied that the location and period of time away from the University are necessary to the research program.

(7) The research shall be supervised by a supervisor and where possible a co-supervisor who are members of the academic staff of the School or under other appropriate supervision arrangements approved by the Committee. Normally an external candidate within another organisation or institution will have a co-supervisor at that institution.

Progression

4. The progress of the candidate shall be considered by the Committee following a report from the School in accordance with the procedures established within the School and previously noted by the Committee.

(i) The research proposal will be reviewed as soon as feasible after enrolment. For a full-time student this will normally be during the first year of study, or immediately following a period of prescribed coursework. This review will focus on the viability of the research proposal.

(ii) Progress in the course will be reviewed within twelve months of the first review. As a result of either review the Committee may cancel enrolment or take such other action as it considers appropriate. Thereafter, the progress of the candidate will be reviewed annually.
Thesis

5. (1) On completing the program of study a candidate shall submit a thesis embodying the results of the investigation.

(2) The candidate shall give in writing to the Registrar two months notice of intention to submit the thesis.

(3) The thesis shall comply with the following requirements:

(a) it must be an original and significant contribution to knowledge of the subject;

(b) the greater proportion of the work described must have been completed subsequent to enrolment for the degree;

(c) it must be written in English except that a candidate in the Faculty of Arts and Social Sciences may be required by the Committee to write a thesis in an appropriate foreign language;

(d) it must reach a satisfactory standard of expression and presentation;

(e) it must consist of an account of the candidate's own research but in special cases work done conjointly with other persons may be accepted provided the Committee is satisfied about the extent of the candidate's part in the joint research.

(4) The candidate may not submit as the main content of the thesis any work or material which has previously been submitted for a university degree or other similar award but may submit any work previously published whether or not such work is related to the thesis.

(5) Four copies of the thesis shall be presented in a form which complies with the requirements of the University for the preparation and submission of theses for higher degrees.

(6) It shall be understood that the University retains the four copies of the thesis submitted for examination and is free to allow the thesis to be consulted or borrowed. Subject to the provisions of the Copyright Act, 1968, the University may issue the thesis in whole or in part, in photostat or microfilm or other copying medium.

Examination

6. (1) There shall be not fewer than three examiners of the thesis, appointed by the Committee, at least two of whom shall be external to the University.

(2) At the conclusion of the examination each examiner shall submit to the Committee a concise report on the thesis and shall recommend to the Committee that one of the following:

(a) The thesis merits the award of the degree.

(b) The thesis merits the award of the degree subject to minor corrections as listed being made to the satisfaction of the head of school.

(c) The thesis requires further work on matters detailed in my report. Should performance in this further work be to the satisfaction of the higher degree Committee, the thesis would merit the award of the degree.

(d) The thesis does not merit the award of the degree in its present form and further work as described in my report is required. The revised thesis should be subject to re-examination.

(e) The thesis does not merit the award of the degree and does not demonstrate that resubmission would be likely to achieve that merit.

(3) If the performance at the further work recommended under (2)(c) above is not to the satisfaction of the Committee, the Committee may permit the candidate to re-present the same thesis and submit to further examination as determined by the Committee within a period specified by it but not exceeding eighteen months.

(4) The Committee shall, after consideration of the examiners' reports and the results of any further work, recommend whether or not the candidate may be awarded the degree. If it is decided that the candidate be not awarded the degree the Committee shall determine whether or not the candidate be permitted to resubmit the thesis after a further period of study and/or research.

Fees

7. A candidate shall pay such fees as may be determined from time to time by the Council.
Master of Laws (LLM)

1. The degree of Master of Laws by research may be awarded by the Council on the recommendation of the Higher Degree Committee of the Faculty of Law (hereinafter referred to as the Committee) to a candidate who has demonstrated ability to undertake research by the submission of a thesis embodying the results of an original investigation.

Qualifications

2. (1) A candidate for the degree shall have been awarded an appropriate degree of Bachelor from the University of New South Wales or a qualification considered equivalent from another university or tertiary institution at a level acceptable to the Committee.

(2) In exceptional cases an applicant who submits evidence of such other academic and professional qualifications as may be approved by the Committee may be permitted to enrol for the degree.

(3) When the Committee is not satisfied with the qualifications submitted by an applicant the Committee may require the applicant, before being permitted to enrol, to undergo such examination or carry out such work as the Committee may prescribe.

Enrolment and Progression

3. (1) An application to enrol as a candidate for the degree shall be made on the prescribed form which shall be lodged with the Registrar at least one calendar month before the commencement of the session in which enrolment is to begin.

(2) In every case before making the offer of a place the Committee shall be satisfied that initial agreement has been reached between the School and the applicant on the topic area, supervision arrangements, provision of adequate facilities and any coursework to be prescribed and that these are in accordance with the provisions of the guidelines for promoting postgraduate study within the University.

(3) The candidate shall be enrolled as either a full-time or part-time student.

(4) A candidate shall be required to undertake an original investigation on an approved topic. The candidate may also be required to undergo such examination and perform such other work as may be prescribed by the Committee.

(5) The research shall be supervised by a supervisor or supervisors who are members of the academic staff of the School, or under other appropriate supervision arrangements approved by the Committee. Normally an external candidate within another organisation or institution will have a co-supervisor at that institution.

(6) Full-time and part-time (or external) candidates for the degree shall submit, within one or two sessions of enrolment respectively, a substantial piece of written work forming part of or relating to the approved topic. If this work is unsatisfactory or not forthcoming, the Committee will review the candidate's enrolment. In any case, the progress of a candidate shall be reviewed annually by the Committee following a report by the candidate, the supervisor and the head of the school, and as a result of such review the Committee may cancel enrolment or take such other action as it considers appropriate.

(7) No candidate shall be granted the degree until the lapse of three academic sessions in the case of a full-time candidate or four academic sessions in the case of a part-time or external candidate from the date of enrolment. In the case of a candidate who has been awarded the degree of Bachelor with Honours or the equivalent of Honours or who has had previous research experience the Committee may approve remission of up to one session for a full-time candidate and two sessions for a part-time or external candidate.

(8) A full-time candidate for the degree shall present for examination not later than six academic sessions from the date of enrolment. A part-time or external candidate for the degree shall present for examination not later than ten academic sessions from the date of enrolment. In special cases an extension of these times may be granted by the Committee.

(9) The candidate may undertake the research as an internal student, ie at a campus, teaching hospital, or other research facility with which the University is associated, or as an external student not in attendance at the University except for periods as may be prescribed by the Committee.

(10) An internal candidate will normally carry out the research on a campus or at a teaching or research facility of the University except that the Committee may permit a candidate to spend a period in the field, within another institution or elsewhere away from the University provided that the work can be supervised in a manner satisfactory to the Committee. In such instances the Committee shall be satisfied that the location and period of time away from the University are necessary to the research program.

Thesis

4. (1) On completing the program of study a candidate shall submit a thesis embodying the results of the original investigation.

(2) The candidate shall give in writing two months notice of intention to submit the thesis.

(3) The thesis shall present an account of the candidate's own research. In special cases work done conjointly with other persons may be accepted, provided the Committee is satisfied about the extent of the candidate's part in the joint research.

(4) Three copies of the thesis shall be presented in a form which complies with the requirements of the University for the preparation and submission of higher degree theses.

(5) It shall be understood that the University retains the three copies of the thesis submitted for examination and is free to allow the thesis to be consulted or borrowed. Subject to the provisions of the Copyright Act, 1968, the University may issue the thesis in whole or in part, in photostat or microfilm or other copying medium.

Examination

5. (1) There shall be not fewer than two examiners of the thesis, appointed by the Committee, at least one of whom shall be external to the University unless the Committee is satisfied that this is not practicable.

(2) At the conclusion of the examination each examiner shall submit to the Committee a concise report on the merits of the thesis and shall recommend to the Committee that:

(a) the thesis merits the award of the degree; or

(b) the thesis merits the award of the degree subject to minor corrections as listed being made to the satisfaction of the head of School; or

(c) the thesis requires further work on matters detailed in the examiner's report. Should performance in this further work be to the satisfaction of the Higher Degree Committee, the thesis would merit the award of the degree; or

(d) the thesis does not merit the award of the degree in its present form and further work as described in the examiner's report is required. The revised thesis should be subject to re-examination; or

(e) the thesis does not merit the award of the degree and does not demonstrate that resubmission would be likely to achieve that merit.

(3) If the performance at the further examination recommended under (2)(c) above is not to the satisfaction of the Committee, the Committee may permit the candidate to re-present the same thesis and submit to a further oral, practical or written examination within a period specified by it but not exceeding eighteen months:

(4) The Committee shall, after consideration of the examiners' reports and the reports of any oral or written or practical examination, recommend whether or not the candidate may be awarded the degree. If it is decided that the candidate be not awarded the degree the Committee shall determine whether or not the candidate may resubmit the thesis after a further period of study and/or research.

Fees

6. A candidate shall pay such fees as may be determined from time to time by the Council.
Master of Laws by Course Work (LLM)

1. The degree of Master of Laws by formal coursework may be awarded by the Council to a candidate who has satisfactorily completed a program of advanced study.

Qualifications

2. (1) A candidate for the degree shall have been awarded an appropriate degree of Bachelor from the University of New South Wales or a qualification considered equivalent from another university or tertiary institution at a level acceptable to the Higher Degree Committee of the Faculty of Law (hereinafter referred to as the Committee).

(2) In exceptional cases an applicant who submits evidence of such other academic and professional qualifications as may be approved by the Committee may be permitted to enrol for the degree.

(3) When the Committee is not satisfied with the qualifications submitted by an applicant the Committee may require the applicant, before being permitted to enrol, to undergo such examination or carry out such work as the Committee may prescribe.

Enrolment and Progression

3. (1) An application to enrol as a candidate for the degree shall be made on the prescribed form which shall be lodged with the Registrar at least two calendar months before the commencement of the session in which enrolment is to begin.

(2) A candidate for the degree shall be required to undertake such formal subjects and pass such assessment as is prescribed.

(3) The progress of a candidate shall be reviewed at least once annually by the Committee and as a result of its review the Committee may cancel enrolment or take such other action as it considers appropriate.

(4) No candidate shall be awarded the degree until the lapse of two academic sessions from the date of enrolment in the case of a full-time candidate or four sessions in the case of a part-time candidate. The maximum period of candidature shall be four academic sessions from the date of enrolment for a full-time candidate and eight sessions for a part-time candidate. In special cases an extension of these times may be granted by the Committee.

Fees

4. A candidate shall pay such fees as may be determined from time to time by the Council.
